About Connections

Every agency listed in Connections has been contacted in order to provide you with current and relevant information. Where listings could not be verified by phone, the organization's website was used to check basic program and contact information. When updating the 2022 edition, we asked organizations what services and programs are being provided, both remotely and in-person.

Please be advised that the moment Connections is printed, it is out of date. This is especially true due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

We highly encourage everyone to contact organizations before visiting in person to confirm operating hours, services being provided (in-person or remote), and any mask or vaccination requirements in order to have the most up-to-date information.

The information included in this book is not intended as legal or medical advice.

Connections contains a selective listing of resources in New York City. If you feel we have missed a valuable resource, or if you represent an agency that would like to be included in Connections, please contact us: Jail & Prison Services, The New York Public Library, 40 West 20th Street, New York, NY 10011.

The information included in Connections is organized into chapters based on types of services and groups of users. No single chapter includes every resource that may be useful to a particular reader. When using this book, we recommend exploring multiple chapters to find the resources best suited to your needs. The table of contents and the index are useful tools readers can also use to find the resources they need.

Conexiones is the Spanish translation of Connections. The most recent translation is available online as a PDF at nypl.org/jps. Spanish speakers who are incarcerated can request up to 40 printed pages at a time, to be sent via mail by writing to: Jail & Prison Services, The New York Public Library, 40 West 20th Street, New York, NY 10011.

ICONS: Four symbols are used in this edition. The (ES) symbol next to the name of an organization means they have Spanish speaking staff or interpreters for Spanish speakers. A bridge  next to the name of an organization means they work with people who are currently incarcerated, and the organization can be contacted pre-release, or by court or attorney referral. The (P) symbol means the organization offers alternative-to-incarceration (ATI) programs. These may also be called alternative-to-detention or diversion programs. The icons are used only when the information is confirmed by a representative from the organization. The  symbol is used throughout Connections, to highlight Know Your Rights information.

Artists! You may request instructions and a template for submitting art for the 2023 edition of Connections, by writing to:

WORDS ARE TO BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY. I TRY TO TAKE SERIOUSLY ACTS OF LANGUAGE. WORDS SET THINGS IN MOTION. I'VE SEEN THEM DOING IT. WORDS SET UP ATMOSPHERES, ELECTRICAL FIELDS, CHARGES. I'VE FELT THEM DOING IT. WORDS CONJURE. I TRY NOT TO BE CARELESS ABOUT WHAT I UTTER, WRITE, SING. I'M CAREFUL ABOUT WHAT I GIVE VOICE TO.

I remember standing in the threshold on the day of my release waiting for the gate to open. The other side of the door seemed like the setting of a dream: I knew I had been there before but could not picture every detail in focus. The vision might end and become reality as soon as the door rolled back, but I expected to wake up before the dream reached a natural conclusion.

I passed through the gate, and after only five steps onto the pavement, the sunshine and street noise felt real again. The world behind me now felt like the dream. My parents picked me up and drove me to a halfway house—just like they had driven me to my childhood friends' homes hundreds of times before. We sat at a truck stop and ate fried chicken. We talked about the weather. What had seemed monumental in my imagination was suddenly mundane. This is how I would experience reentry for the rest of my life: caught between two worlds, feeling like they cannot both be real, living in one and daydreaming about the other.

As long as we allow prisons to separate individuals from families and communities, those attempting to cross the threshold between the inside and the outside will feel this tension. Every interaction seems crowded by some level of stigma. Every new friend tries, but cannot quite understand, what goes through my mind when I remember where I have been. As long as a criminal record makes one weird, scary, or uninvited, those who carry them will never be fully whole. Reentry becomes a conversation about symptom management instead of healing.

Fortunately, people are increasingly ready to change the conversation. A spotlight shines on the tragedy of police violence and overincarceration, and now our families, neighborhoods, landlords, employers, schools, and services are warming up to the idea that experience within the criminal legal system can equip a person with value and not only shame. Formerly incarcerated students at CUNY School of Law are a prime example of this.

When I learned that law school was possible for me, a lot of things changed. I searched “law school with a criminal record” on a whim and found formerly incarcerated students and attorneys already studying or practicing law across the country. So, I picked up the phone. One call led me to a formerly incarcerated attorney who told me that law school at CUNY was one of the best times of his life. Another call led me to a student who had founded a club supporting justice-impacted students at CUNY Law. Months later, I sold everything I owned and moved to Brooklyn in order to get into the mix.

The students of FILSAA, the Formerly Incarcerated Law Students Advocacy Association, welcomed me with open hearts. They provided academic, social, and professional support and treated me like a lifelong friend right out of the gate. These are all things a traditional student might already know and all things that might cause a nontraditional student to fall through the cracks. We carry these practices on with each incoming class. I neglected asking for help in the beginning because that did not seem natural. It is not easy to trust nor to ask for help in prison or in many communities often touched by incarceration. But with other formerly incarcerated students to approach, it seemed like our shared experiences kept us from feeling so isolated. I always found the help I needed and never felt shame for needing it.

More than all of this, though, they showed me in so many undefinable ways that I no longer stood in the threshold. Experiences with the criminal system taught me traits and skills that were valued in the world of FILSAA and of social justice lawyering. My new friends taught me that I brought something powerful to the practice of the law. I had not seen myself as valuable in a long time, and suddenly I began to believe it.

We continue this work at CUNY School of Law for more and more students each year. Prospective students with criminal records find us through our YouTube channel, where we try to answer the same questions I once had, years ago, in my vague search for what was possible. When we connect with prospective students, our members go to work answering questions and editing admissions essays. Once formerly incarcerated students arrive, we work hard to offer the same kinds of academic, professional, and social support I received, but we also seek opportunities to allow them to connect with the legal community beyond our campus. Recently, a few extremely generous attorneys from the Beit Simchat Torah congregation joined us in establishing a mentorship program for the formerly incarcerated students of FILSAA. Many of us are first-generation college students—almost certainly first-generation law students—and have no built-in professional networks in the legal world. Our mentors help us navigate that and other challenges that come as justice-impacted students trying to enter an historically elite profession. Looking beyond law school, we partner with organizations like the National Justice Impact Bar Association and the Unlock the Bar Coalition to advocate for attorneys with criminal records and reduce the discriminatory impact of out-of-date character and fitness questions on the state’s bar application. We also try to keep an open channel of communication with our school’s Admissions Department, helping them see the benefit of offering more seats to formerly incarcerated applicants, thereby opening up the legal field to those most affected by it.

For so long I imagined possibilities for my life after prison, and a very low ceiling limited my imagination. When I found out I could go to law school and join the fight for change, I began allowing myself to imagine a future with no ceiling, where anything might be possible. At FILSAA, we offer that hope to each next wave of students who are deserving of a future in which their pasts might fuel their abilities to create a more just world. These days, my imagination is bigger and brighter, and prison has never felt so far behind.

LISETTE BAMENGA

WORDS AND IMAGE USED WITH PERMISSION FROM THE WRITER.

As a woman who has been directly impacted by the legal system, it is very important to me to advocate for the sisters and brothers who are still inside. After spending 4 years on Rikers Island fighting my case, I went upstate to serve the remaining 2.5 years of my sentence. Prior to my incarceration, I had taught in NYC schools for close to a decade and had earned a Master's degree in Early Childhood Education, Childhood Education, and Students with Disabilities. As the time for my release neared, I wondered if I would find a place in society. Because of my conviction, my teaching license was revoked, so what would I do to support myself? Since I had a term of post-release supervision, I had to report to parole. During orientation, several organizations came to pitch their services. While making small talk with various providers, I was introduced to a whole network of people who cared about formerly incarcerated people. This is when I was introduced to the field of reentry. Organizations such as St Luke's Hospital's Coming Home program, which ensures people returning home from incarceration have access to good healthcare; College and Community Fellowship, which assists women with legal system involvement pursue their education; Women's Community Justice Association, who introduced me to advocacy, and several others. They showed me that not only people in the community cared about the plight of individuals who are currently and formerly incarcerated, but people who directly had been impacted by the legal system were leading these organizations and programs. This realization gave me the reassurance I needed to trust I would find my rightful place in the community. Just three months after my release from prison, I started working as an Academic Coordinator for Hudson Link for Higher Education in Prison, a non-profit organization that provides college programming for women and men who are incarcerated in NY state. In that role, I managed the college program in a women's correctional facility. I am a strong believer that education is power. Thus, this opportunity enabled me to marry my passion for pedagogy and my desire to make sure the sisters and brothers I had left behind received the best possible education.

After the onset of COVID-19 forced college providers out of the facility, I wanted to expand my impact by joining advocacy efforts but the thought of identifying myself as a formerly incarcerated person left me ashamed and petrified. The stigma of having been to prison caused me to want to hide behind the scenes. However, once I realized the value and power I possessed because of my lived experience, I signed up to be an advocate for criminal justice reforms every chance I got. My first public speaking engagement was in September 2020 during a NYS Senate Joint Committee Hearing about the impact of COVID-19 on jails and prisons. At that hearing, I testified on behalf of the New York Consortium of Higher Education in Prison, in front of legislators and community members, on the effects the pandemic had on academic programs. Shortly after the hearing, I was invited to be a panelist at a Restore the Vote Town Hall to share the many obstacles I encountered before I could vote in the 2020 Presidential election. This panel was attended by NYS Senators and Assembly Members who worked on bills S830B/A4448 to automatically re-enfranchise people returning home upon release from prison. After that event, I spoke at a Turn On the TAP Rally to discuss the benefits of higher education in prison, and to advocate for bills S4464/A2322 to be passed to restore state financial aid for incarcerated college students. I have also participated in Clean Slate Act advocacy days where I spoke to legislators about bills S1553A/A6399, which would automatically seal and expunge misdemeanor and felony convictions after a certain period of time spent in the community; a prospect I expressed would provide formerly incarcerated people a true reintegration into society. I also wrote an article titled “Good Intentions Don’t Blunt the Impact of Dehumanizing Words” as part of the Marshall Project’s Language Project to raise awareness on the use of person-first language in the media. My article discussed the impact of the use of negative labels, and provided readers alternatives they can use when discussing people with legal system involvement in a way that respects their humanity. Needless to say I no longer wonder whether I have a place in the community. Just as the saying goes “the people closest to the problem are the closest to the solution”, I decided to partake in the improvements I wanted to see in society.

Believing that criminal justice reform is closely tied to racial justice, I am currently leading a project to design a curriculum on Racial Justice and Abolition Democracy at Columbia University. Educating the next generation as well as people in the community about the true history of this country, the racist practices embedded in every system, and pushing them to reimagine a just society is what I hope to accomplish with this curriculum. I believe that educators are the pillars of their community, therefore I intend to use my position of leadership to affect changes in areas traditionally overlooked with the goal of achieving greater equity and opportunities for all. My desire to use restorative justice practices to foster healing and trust in my community is charged by my drive to eradicate the roadblocks that have been kept in place by racist systemic policies. Subsequently, aside from thought provoking curriculum, I am also interested in working on educational policies and reforms to uproot the barriers that prevent marginalized people from climbing the social ladder. I believe now is the opportune time to take action because it seems the plight and cries of people of color are finally mobilizing change on a larger scale than ever before. With people being more attuned to the systemic inequalities, I find it imperative to use my lived experience and join in the advocacy efforts so I can be part of the changes I want to see.

ANGEL SOLIS

WORDS AND IMAGE USED WITH PERMISSION FROM THE WRITER.

While I cannot tell you the definite time or date of my rebirth, I can give you an approximation. I was socially put to death by the state of New York on my birthday, September 8th, 2011. I was sentenced to 5 ½ years. It was a slow death. Every social tie that connected me to the fabric of my human existence was painfully and gradually torn asunder by the closing steel bars of my incarceration. The final two blows came when my grandmother, the woman who had raised me single handedly, perished. When she died, all hopes of a shelter, a place to start anew, died with her. It dawned on me that I was going to be released to a shelter one day. Soon after her death, I lost contact with the mother of my then year-old daughter. I would not speak to my daughter again until I was released. That year was the worst year of my life. For the first time, I was utterly alone. I began losing my hair and I had lost the will to live but I was unable to die; hence, I existed but was not alive. I was somewhere in between, something akin to existence in a womb.

Like a child in a mother's womb, for the next year I floated aimlessly, nourished, sheltered, and restricted by the cold chains of my umbilical cord. I don't remember how or when, but I do remember being made aware that I could get a couple of months taken off my sentence if I got a certain amount of college credits. Fortuitously, I happened to be in one of the very few prisons that had a college program. I was eligible because I had gotten my GED in Rikers Island during a previous prison sentence. At the time, I enrolled because I loved to read, and college meant more books. Indeed, reading and sleeping were my sole moments of respite from the unceasing agony of a confined existence. I had no inkling at that time, but I was mere weeks away from my rebirth.

In contemporary western civilization, most births occur in a hospital; however, my rebirth occurred in a makeshift Economics 101 classroom at Mt. McGregor Correctional Facility. The first time I began to utilize my hearing was when our professor began explaining how poverty and wealth, social and economic class, and even racial constructs were an epiphenomenon of a society's economic system. The first time I used my vocal cords I, like all newborns, cried out. Outraged at the blatant resultant injustices that were inherent in the operation of our economic system, I ranted to my professor about how the system must be changed. He looked at me with sad warm eyes and with a smile told me to read the textbook chapter on Karl Marx. I did and for the first time in my life I could see. Famished for more stimuli, my intellectual eyes would not be halted by some insignificant chapter break but would insatiably consume the entire textbook before the conclusion of that week. When I finally closed that textbook, I opened a new chapter in my life. I would take my first step on a path forged by an exigent desire to attain justice and equity.

I could never truly illustrate how painful my rebirth was. I still bear the markings of my birth within the deepest reaches of my psyche. I remember staying up writing an essay in Greene Correctional Facility as the screams of a fellow inmate being assaulted by correctional officers came in through my window. As if one of the sadistic Fates were illustrating a destiny yet to manifest, through tear-streaked eyes I saw shadows of fists falling unto the inmate, dancing wickedly to the song of his cry moving across on my paper. This shadow, reflected through the window of my cubicle, refracted that inmate's agony through the prism of my heart. His pain was my pain; his present my present; his future my future; his oppression my oppression. Most students experience college with extreme anxiety due to the volume of course work and mounting deadlines; while I did too, it was compounded with a more primal anxiety... one tied to survival. I saw people die in prison. I have seen officers laugh as they placed a rag over a kid's face and poured water over it. I lived in a state of incessant, all-encompassing fear of my newly acquired life the entire time of my incarceration. Paranoia, anxiety, hypervigilance, all these awareness states aided my survival in captivity. In freedom, these awareness states would insidiously threaten my mental health. It's a war I still wage internally, for a part of my mind still does not recognize that I am safe... Indeed, a part of me still isn't free.

I would eventually be released in April 2016. Having maintained a 4.0 GPA and accumulated 64 credits, professors I had met in prison persuaded me to apply to Columbia University. I was accepted and graduated with a bachelor's degree in May 2021. But reentry was and still is difficult and fraught with peril. I was released into a shelter by parole and had I not had the support of the friends I had accumulated during my time in prison I would have returned to prison or died. I was always hungry, broke, and dealing with the oppressive environment of my two jobs while simultaneously going to school. I was expected to survive off $80 a month in food stamps and no matter what I did I could not make it work. However, with the aid of my friends, I persevered. In time these friends connected me to a network of like minded individuals who believed in the fight against injustice. These connections, these people, these gentle hands who sowed this torn thread back into the fabric of society helped me navigate institutional obstacles and recruited me into their ranks. Today I work at the Alliance of Families for Justice (AFJ) and lead their youth community leadership program, the Youth Empowerment Project. At AFJ we provide services for the families of the incarcerated and tirelessly endeavor to eradicate the injustices that proliferate in prisons. Some may say I have successfully reentered society, but the reentry phase has never ended for me. Ultimately, being cut off from people almost killed me. It was people that breathed life into my moving corpse, and it is people that keep me going; hence, I live my life in dedication to people and their access to justice.

Introduction

Please be advised that the moment Connections is printed, it is out of date. This is especially true due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

We highly encourage everyone to contact organizations before visiting in person to confirm operating hours, services being provided (in-person or remote), and any mask or vaccination requirements in order to have the most up-to-date information.

The impact of COVID-19 will continue to be felt in unpredictable ways. This impacts the organizations in Connections and the services they are able to provide.

It is important to be aware of government policy changes that may be made as the situation is monitored and evaluated. For the most recent information and updates on COVID-19, including latest data and COVID-19 cases by area, variant information, vaccines, vaccination sites, testing sites, symptoms, prevention, mask guidelines, and more, contact:

For New York State—Call the COVID-19 Hotline: 888.346.3065, call the Vaccination Hotline: 833.697.4829, or visit www.coronavirus.health.ny.gov/home.

For New York City—Call 311, text COVID to 692-692, or visit www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/covid/covid-19-main.page.

Information on COVID-19

It is important to get information and updates about COVID-19 from reliable sources.

The World Health Organization (WHO) is an agency of the United Nations responsible for international public health. WHO's COVID-19 information page is available at www.who.int/emergencies/diseases/novel-coronavirus-2019. The website also has a question and answer section providing information on many topics including vaccines, variants, youth, pregnancy, breastfeeding, cleaning and disinfection, contraceptives and family planning, homecare, tips for health and safety, and more. They also have a mythbusters page providing factual information on rumors and misinformation about COVID-19.

New York State's COVID-19 website is www.coronavirus.health.ny.gov/home. Updated information on symptoms and prevention, testing, vaccines, rights, news, including travel advisories, and more, is available.

New York City's COVID-19 website is www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/covid/covid-19-main.page. Updated information on vaccines, new variants/strains, face covering guidance, symptoms, higher risk factors, symptoms in children, information for those who are pregnant, and more, is available.

Anyone can get COVID-19 and spread COVID-19. The best way to protect yourself and others is to get vaccinated and to follow masking and physical distancing guidelines.

COVID-19 is primarily transmitted from person-to-person through respiratory droplets. These droplets are released when someone with COVID-19 breathes, sneezes, coughs, or talks.

Not everyone develops symptoms, but even asymptomatic people can spread COVID-19, including to those who are at a higher risk of severe illness from COVID-19. While vaccinated people can get breakthrough cases and spread COVID-19, it is significantly less likely compared to unvaccinated people. Scientists and doctors are still learning about COVID-19, including information about long-term effects it can have.

Prevention measures to decrease the spread of COVID-19 include:

- Get a vaccine, if you are medically able to do so.
- Wear a face mask.
- Practice physical distancing as much as possible.
- Stay home if you are sick.
- Keep your hands clean: frequently wash your hands for at least 20 seconds or use hand sanitizer if soap and water are not available.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose, and mouth.

- Cover your mouth by coughing or sneezing into your sleeve or a tissue, and discard tissues in a closed container.
- Disinfect frequently touched surfaces and objects.

Along with following these prevention measures, WHO recommends avoiding the “3C’s” to minimize the risks of COVID-19.

When considering activities; avoid:

- Closed spaces with poor ventilation.
- Crowded places with many people nearby.
- Close contact, such as close-range conversations.

The risk of getting COVID-19 is higher in crowded and inadequately ventilated spaces where people spend long periods of time together in close proximity. These environments are where the virus appears to spread by respiratory droplets and aerosols more efficiently.

Face Coverings

Wearing a mask helps prevent the spread of COVID-19 by:

- Protecting the wearer, by reducing their exposure to respiratory particles that may contain the virus.
- Protecting others, by reducing the amount of respiratory particles that enter the air when someone with COVID-19 coughs, sneezes, talks, or breathes.

For more information about face masks, including COVID-19 facts, care instructions, and frequently asked questions, visit www1.nyc.gov/site/coronavirus/resources/facecoverings.page.

COVID-19 Tests

Testing remains an important part of reducing the spread of COVID-19. All New Yorkers should get tested for COVID-19 if they have symptoms or were recently exposed to someone with COVID-19. How often you should get tested depends on whether or not you are vaccinated against COVID-19. People who are not fully vaccinated should get tested more often, even if they do not have symptoms or a recent exposure.

At the time of publication, if you go to a test site run by New York State or NYC Test and Trace Corps there is never any charge for your test. For test sites operated by private companies including pharmacies, medical practices, or not-for-profit organizations, you are advised to check with the testing site and your insurer in advance of being tested to confirm you will not be responsible for any fees associated with your test.

For more information about COVID-19 testing, including drive-thru testing, antibody testing, and to find a testing site:

For New York State—Call 888.346.3065 or visit <https://forward.ny.gov/covid-19-testing>.

For New York City—Call 311, text COVID TEST to 855-48, or visit www1.nyc.gov/site/coronavirus/get-tested/covid-19-testing.page.

At-home testing for COVID-19 is available to all immunocompromised New Yorkers and those ages 65 and older. To schedule an in-home appointment, call 929.298.9400 between 9am–7pm, 7 days a week.

Post COVID-19 Care & Long COVID

The long-term effects of those who have had COVID-19 are still being studied, and the virus can affect many different systems in the body. Some people who had COVID-19, whether they have needed hospitalization or not, continue to experience health issues for months after first being infected, or may have new or recurring symptoms at a later time. This includes fatigue, respiratory and neurological symptoms, and more. This is known as post-acute COVID-19 syndrome, also called Long COVID or chronic COVID.

Several NYC hospitals have specialized clinics to provide follow-up care to people who had COVID-19. Post-COVID care clinics bring together clinical teams from different specialties (including pulmonology, cardiology, rehabilitation, neurology, and mental health) to provide comprehensive treatment. There are also rehabilitation and physical therapy clinics with specialized services for people recovering from COVID-19.

Visit www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/covid/covid-19-symptoms-chronic-health-risks.page for a list of Post-COVID care clinics.

Long COVID can be a disability under the ADA, Section 504, and Section 1557 if it substantially limits one or more major life activities. For information and guidance about disability and Long COVID visit www.hhs.gov/civil-rights/for-providers/civil-rights-covid19/guidance-long-covid-disability/index.html.

For help with disability and other benefits and issues related to COVID-19, call the Legal Aid Society's Access to Benefits (A2B) Helpline at 888.663.6880, Mon–Fri 10am–3pm.

BODY POLITIC—COVID-19 SUPPORT GROUP

www.wearebodypolitic.com

A support group for people who are experiencing symptoms of, or are recovering from, COVID-19. Also provides informational resources on Long COVID, exercise and pacing, dysautonomia, employment and disabilities benefits, emotional and peer support, and more.

Vaccines

According to medical experts, the best way to protect yourself and others from COVID-19 is by getting a vaccine. It is possible to get COVID-19 a second time, so even people who have had COVID-19 should get a vaccine. The vaccines are safe and highly effective at preventing serious illness or death from COVID-19.

In March 2021, a judge in New York Supreme Court ruled that every person incarcerated in NYS jails or prisons, must be offered the vaccine.

As of October 2021, the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has authorized three COVID-19 vaccines: Pfizer, Moderna, and Johnson & Johnson (J&J). See the table on the next page for more information about each vaccine. Information about additional doses and booster shots is available on page 28.

Name	Who Can Get this Vaccine	How Many Initial Shots Needed	When Are You Fully Vaccinated?
Pfizer	People 5 years and older*	2 shots, given 3 weeks (21 days) apart	2 weeks after your second shot
Moderna	People 18 years and older	2 shots, given 4 weeks (28 days) apart	2 weeks after your second shot
J&J	People 18 years and older	1 shot	2 weeks after your shot

 At the time of publication, the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has authorized Pfizer for children ages 5 to 11 years old. The dose contains one-third the amount of active ingredient compared to the adult dose, and children would receive a second dose 21 days or more after their first shot.*

Vaccines are made up of ingredients including small amounts of inactive ingredients such as oil, salt, sugar, and an active ingredient. The Moderna and Pfizer vaccines use messenger RNA (mRNA). Although the COVID-19 vaccine was developed recently, research on mRNA vaccines has been under way for decades. The mRNA vaccines do not contain any live virus. Instead, they work by teaching your body how to make the protein that triggers antibody production so if the real virus enters your body, your immune system will recognize it, and antibodies will be produced to get rid of it. The J&J vaccine uses a cold virus to carry a ‘spike’ gene into the body, where cells make safe copies of the protein to prime the immune system in case the real virus enters the body. None of the vaccines change your DNA.

More resources worldwide were invested in creating the COVID-19 vaccine than in any other medicine in history. The record pace of production of the vaccines is due to increased resources, the mRNA vaccine method, and a vaccine blueprint from another similar virus called MERS. All phases of clinical trials were completed showing the vaccine was safe and effective before they were approved.

People often have side effects after getting the vaccine, usually lasting a day or two. This is normal and a sign that your immune system is being activated to fight the virus and can include pain, redness, or swelling where the shot was given, fever, fatigue, headache, muscle pain, chills, and joint pain. Severe allergic reactions to the vaccine are rare. Be sure to tell the person giving you the shot if you have a history of severe allergic reactions or if you've ever had to use an EpiPen.

For more information on COVID-19 vaccines visit www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/vaccines/different-vaccines.html.

The Justice Initiatives team at Brooklyn Public Library have published a COVID-19 information packet written and researched by The Community, a Milwaukee, Wisconsin based decarceration organization and newsletter, who partnered with the Medical College of Wisconsin, and students and staff at Yale University. When making the packet they asked incarcerated ambassadors what questions/concerns they were hearing inside, and let that guide them in what to cover. To receive a packet by mail, please write to:

Schedule a Vaccine Appointment

For information about COVID-19 vaccines, including locations and making an appointment:

For New York State—Call 888.346.3065 or visit www.covid19vaccine.health.ny.gov.

For New York City—Call 311 or visit www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/covid/covid-19-vaccines.page.

COVID-19 Vaccine at Home

NYC is offering in-home COVID-19 vaccinations. You can sign up for in-home vaccination at <https://forms.cityofnewyork.us/f/home> (not accessible on Internet Explorer) or by calling 877.829.4692. You will then be contacted to schedule your in-home vaccination. You can choose to receive the two-dose Pfizer or Moderna vaccine, or the one-dose J&J vaccine. Multiple people in the same household can be vaccinated during a single visit.

Free Transportation

NYC residents 65 and older can get free transportation to and from a vaccination appointment. This service is also available for those with disabilities who have no other way to get to a vaccination site. To schedule free transport by either ambulette or taxi (including wheelchair accessible vehicles), call 877.829.4692. People younger than 18 must have a parent or guardian call to book the trip on their behalf.

DISABILITY INFORMATION AND ACCESS LINE (DIAL)

Telephone: 888.677.1199 (Mon–Fri 9am–8pm)

www.acl.gov/DIAL

A hotline available to help people with disabilities get vaccinated. Trained staff can help find local vaccination locations, assist with making vaccination appointments, and connect callers to local services, such as accessible transportation, to overcome barriers to vaccination. Also provides information and resources to answer questions about vaccines, and connect callers to information and services that promote independent living and address fundamental needs, such as food, housing, and transportation.

Additional Doses & Booster Shots

People who are moderately to severely immunocompromised (meaning they have a weakened immune system) are eligible for an additional dose of the Pfizer or Moderna vaccine. The CDC recommends the additional dose at least 28 days after a second dose of the Pfizer or Moderna vaccine. Immunocompromised individuals should confer with their physicians regarding the appropriateness and timing for receiving an additional dose of COVID-19 vaccine.

There are booster recommendations for all three COVID-19 vaccines available in the US for people over 18. For up-to-date information about booster shots and eligibility visit <https://covid19vaccine.health.ny.gov/booster-doses>. Booster shots are available for:

- People who received the J&J vaccine 2 or more months ago
- People who received the Pfizer or Moderna vaccine at least 6 months ago

- “Mix and matching” of vaccine brands is permitted

It is recommended to consult your regular health care provider for more information.

Vaccine Card Information

After receiving a COVID-19 vaccine, people are given a vaccination card. The card includes information about which COVID-19 vaccine you received, the date you received it, what lot number the vaccine is from, and where you received it. It is important to keep your vaccination card in a safe place, as it will be needed for travel purposes, to enter certain businesses, attend events, and for additional doses or booster shots.

Do not laminate your card as vaccine providers will not be able to write additional information on it, such as booster shot information.

If you have lost your vaccination card, call the NYS COVID-19 Vaccination Hotline at 833.697.4829 for information on how to get a replacement card.

The NYC Health website has information on lost vaccination cards for those who need verification of their vaccine status, available at www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/services/cir-parents-guardians.page.

Resources & Organizations

The following are resources related specifically to COVID-19. This is not a comprehensive list. Many of the organizations in Connections are also providing COVID-19 specific services or have a dedicated COVID-19 resource page on their website.

FINANCIAL HELP & RELIEF

Due to the pandemic, temporary financial relief programs were set up to help people with economic hardship. At the time of publication, these relief funds may have run out or are on pause. This includes the Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP), the Excluded Workers Fund, and the Emergency Broadband Benefit. It is important to stay up to date for any developments. More information about ERAP can be found on page 34.

EXCLUDED WORKERS FUND

www.dol.ny.gov/EWF

The program set up to provide financial help to New Yorkers who lost income during the COVID-19 pandemic and were left out of various federal relief programs, including unemployment and pandemic benefits. At the time of publication, applications were no longer being accepted.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION—EMERGENCY BROADBAND BENEFIT

www.fcc.gov/broadbandbenefit

Temporary program to help families and households struggling to afford internet service during the COVID-19 pandemic. Provides a discount of up to $50 per month toward broadband service for eligible households and up to $75 per month for households on qualifying Tribal lands. Eligible households can also receive a one-time discount of up to $100 to purchase a laptop, desktop computer, or tablet from participating providers. Call or visit the website for eligibility and application information.

MENTAL HEALTH

NYS COVID-19 Emotional Support Helpline—Call 844.863.9314 (7 days a week, 8am–10pm).

NYC Well—Call 888.692.9355 (24 hours a day, 7 days a week). Interpreters are available for over 200 languages. Can provide referrals for those experiencing grief and loss.

NYC HEALTH—COVID-19

www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/covid/covid-19-mental-health.page

Provides information and resources for coping and emotional well-being related to COVID-19 including stress, anxiety, grief, and trauma.

SUPPORT IF YOU ARE EXPERIENCING VIOLENCE

Organizations that can provide resources for safety and offer support can be found within various chapters in this book for those experiencing violence at home. Look up Domestic Violence in the back index to find page numbers for these listings.

Futures Without Violence offers a list of resources available at www.futureswithoutviolence.org/get-updates-information-covid-19.

COVID-19 & HUMAN RIGHTS

NYC Human Resources Attorneys and human rights specialists are available to help those who have experienced discrimination or harassment related to COVID-19. Visit www1.nyc.gov/site/cchr/media/covid19.page for information on rights. To report harassment or discrimination in housing, at work, or in any public place, call 212.416.0197, or use the online form at www1.nyc.gov/site/cchr/about/report-discrimination.page.

NYC ISOLATION HOTEL PROGRAM FOR THOSE WITH COVID-19

www1.nyc.gov/site/helpnownyc/get-help/covid-19-hotel-program.page

Provides hotel rooms for self-isolation, free of charge, for up to 14 days for those who do not have a safe place to self-isolate. This can mean (1) your home does not have space for you to stay six feet away from others, (2) you share rooms or a bathroom, or (3) you live with someone who is vulnerable. Hotel rooms are also available for New Yorkers without COVID-19 but who live with someone who has COVID-19. To qualify, a medical provider will assess your situation and then refer you to a hotel if appropriate. The program includes food, linens, and local phone service.

GET FOOD NYC—COVID-19 EMERGENCY FOOD ASSISTANCE

www1.nyc.gov/assets/dsny/contact/services/COVID-19FoodAssistance.shtml

Provides information on food resources across the city including free food pantries and grab-and-go meals at NYC Schools, available for all children or adults in need; grocery store and farmer's market locations; information on P-EBT; NYC food delivery assistance; benefit information; and other services and information.

NYC HEAT AND UTILITIES BILL ASSISTANCE

<https://portal.311.nyc.gov/article/?kanumber=KA-02529>

Provides updates about heat and utilities bills and information on emergency financial assistance, the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP), and more.

SERVICE PROGRAM FOR OLDER PEOPLE (SPOP)

Telephone: 212.787.7120 x514

www.spop.org

Providing comprehensive behavioral healthcare for New Yorkers ages 55 and over and offering bereavement support groups for adults of all ages, free of charge during the COVID-19 pandemic. Call or visit the website for more information.

NYC DEPARTMENT OF CONSUMER AND WORK PROTECTION (DCWP)—WORKER RIGHTS

Worker Protection Hotline: 212.436.0381 or 311

www1.nyc.gov/site/dca/workers/worker-rights.page

Provides information about reopening and health and safety guidelines for the workplace. Call to report an employer that is not following safety requirements.

MUTUAL AID NYC

www.mutualaid.nyc

A network of groups organizing to provide aid and support to New Yorkers during the COVID-19 pandemic. Contact to find information on groups by neighborhood and resources for specific needs. The website also provides a substantial resource library covering many topics including childcare, delivery/transport, education, eldercare, exercise and wellness, food, fun and leisure, housing, internet and technology, jobs, legal, medical, mental health, money, mutual aid organizing, personal protective equipment (PPE), petcare, safety from violence, social service guidance, and more. A directory to search for support offered by location and a help request form is available online. Visit the website for the hotline operating hours and languages offered.

NYC COVID CARE NETWORK

www.nyccovidcare.org

A mutual aid network comprised of therapists, psychiatrists, counselors, life coaches, grief counselors, spiritual care providers, organizers, and crisis line workers. Provides support to all essential workers and their families, and any uninsured individual in the NYC Metro area. Visit the website to connect to services.

Rent & Eviction Information

It is important to stay up to date with policies and legal processes for tenants throughout 2022 to know what protections you may have. Organizations and resources offering free legal assistance, eviction defense, and more can be found in the Housing chapter starting on page 105.

The Emergency Rental Assistance Program (ERAP) was the rent relief program set in place to pay COVID-19-related debts to prevent evictions. As of November 2021, the total requests for assistance exceeded available federal funding for ERAP and the application portal has been closed.

ERAP applications under review or submitted prior to the portal closing will be reviewed for eligibility and payment depending on available federal funds. To fill out an online form to be notified of possible future opportunities to apply to ERAP, visit the NYS ERAP webpage at www.otda.ny.gov/erap.

People who need assistance can apply for Cash Assistance, including an emergency assistance grant (one-shot deal), through ACCESS HRA. People who applied for ERAP before the application portal closed need to submit proof of their ERAP application and/or determination with their HRA application for rental assistance in accordance with NYS requirements. For up-to-date information on NYC Rental Assistance visit www1.nyc.gov/site/hra/help/new-york-emergency-rental-assistance-program-erap.page.

At the time of publication, there was no comprehensive eviction moratorium to protect all tenants in NY from evictions and the eviction protections put in place are set to expire January 15, 2022. An eviction moratorium prohibits tenants from being physically evicted from their homes, but does not cancel rent—meaning landlords still have the right to collect unpaid rent that has accrued.

A letter or notice from your landlord demanding rent is not an eviction. Only a judge can evict you. However, if you receive an eviction notice from the Civil Court of the City of New York, this is a legal document and requires a response. You have the right to a tenant attorney to defend you in court. If you receive an eviction notice from the Court, call 718.557.1379 for information about how to access free legal assistance. Free interpretation services are available.

Free legal advice and representation for NYC residents, regardless of immigration status, is being offered by NYC HRA's Office of Civil Justice. Call 311 and ask for the “Tenant Helpline” for updates and assistance with legal issues related to housing including tenancy, eviction, landlord-tenant disputes, and more.

The NYC Tenant Resource Portal, available at www1.nyc.gov/content/tenantresourceportal/pages/, is an online tool to help renters navigate public and private resources. A tenant seeking help is taken through a series of questions and directed to resources based on their responses.

For information and updates on NYC Rental Assistance Programs, including eligibility and information for an emergency cash grant for rent arrears, visit www1.nyc.gov/site/hra/help/rental-assistance.page or call the NYC HRA Infoline at 718.557.1399.

NYC Mayor’s Office to Protect Tenants provides up-to-date information on eviction, including your rights and legal implications, online at www1.nyc.gov/content/tenantprotection/pages/covid19-home-quarantine.

Right to Counsel NYC Coalition provides up-to-date information including fact sheets and a Know Your Rights guide explaining the limited eviction moratorium, pre-COVID-19 cases, and court openings, online at www.righttocounselnyc.org/organizing_covid19.

The New York State Unified Court System provides housing court updates and information on housing related legal actions. Call 212.962.4795 or visit www.nycourts.gov/courts/nyc/housing/index.shtml.

For information and updates on COVID-19 guidance and resources for NYCHA residents visit www1.nyc.gov/site/nycha/about/covid-19-resources.page.

For information on the NYC Rent Freeze Program, which includes the Senior Citizen Rent Increase Exemption (SCRIE) Program and the Disability Rent Increase Exemption (DRIE) Program, to help those eligible stay in affordable housing by freezing their rent, visit www1.nyc.gov/site/rentfreeze/index.page.

Other Information & Resources

ECONOMIC INCOME PAYMENTS (STIMULUS CHECKS)

At the time of publication, there have been a total of three Economic Income Payments (EIP):

- $1,200 in April 2020
- $600 in December 2020/January 2021
- $1,400 in March 2021

Eligible people who didn't receive the first two stimulus checks, or who received less than they should have, could have claimed a Recovery Rebate Credit on their 2020 tax returns. People who didn't receive the third stimulus payment can submit a Recovery Rebate Credit on their 2021 returns. For more information including eligibility, payment amounts, documents needed, and payment timing visit www.irs.gov/coronavirus/get-my-payment.

Taxpayer Advocate Services (TAS)

Because of the complicated nature of each individual's tax situation, it is best to reach out to the IRS or Taxpayer Advocate Services for EIP and tax assistance. For more information visit www.taxpayeradvocate.irs.gov.

People who have not opened a case with TAS, should call 877.777.4778 to get started. Those who do have a case open should contact their local TAS office, listed below.

Education

YOUR TEACHERS ARE ALL AROUND YOU.
ALL THAT YOU PERCEIVE,
ALL THAT YOU EXPERIENCE,
ALL THAT IS GIVEN TO YOU
OR TAKEN FROM YOU,
ALL THAT YOU LOVE OR HATE, NEED OR FEAR
WILL TEACH YOU—IF YOU WILL LEARN.

— OCTAVIA E. BUTLER, PARABLE OF THE SOWER

Adult Literacy, High School Equivalency (HSE), & English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL)

There are three levels of adult literacy classes:

- Beginning programs help adults learn to read and write.
- Intermediate programs help those who read below a sixth-grade level improve their reading and writing skills.
- Advanced programs assist people who read at a sixth- to eighth-grade level.

Sometimes literacy programs are called Adult Basic Education (ABE) programs, while advanced adult literacy programs are often referred to as pre-High School Equivalency (pre-HSE). These focus on reading, writing, math, social science, and other subjects.

A High School Equivalency (HSE) diploma is the recognized alternative to a high school diploma.

Note: The NYS Education Department’s contract with the vendor which provided the HSE exam, the Test Assessing Secondary Completion (TASC), expired December 2021. As of 2022, the GED test will serve as the NYS HSE exam. Passing subtest scores from the TASC from 2014 to 2021, and prior GED scores from 2002 to 2013, will continue to be applicable toward current HSE subtest requirements.

For more information on the GED test, along with up-to-date information on the alternative pathways to earn an HSE diploma, visit www.acces.nysed.gov/hse/high-school-equivalency-hse, write to the NYS Education Department–HSE Office, 89 Washington Avenue, EBA 460, Albany, NY 12234, or call 518.474.5906.

Replacing lost HSE diplomas or transcripts

In order to replace a copy of your New York State HSE diploma or transcripts, you must fill out the application found online at www.acces.nysed.gov/hse/duplicate-diplomas-and-or-transcripts and send: (1) the completed application; and (2) a certified check or money order payable to the New York State Education Department (either $4.00 for a copy of a passing transcript, $4.00 for a copy of a failing transcript, or $10.00 for a copy of a diploma and transcript) to:

New York State Education Department—HSE Office
89 Washington Avenue, EBA 460, Albany, NY 12234

Please note that it takes approximately 8–10 weeks to receive a copy or replacement upon receipt of request.

Below outlines the basic steps for applying to an undergraduate program at CUNY found online at www.cuny.edu/admissions/undergraduate/apply.

Determine your college choices and academic programs

You can apply to multiple campuses using a single application. You should determine your college choices and academic programs before starting your application. The priority application deadline for Fall is February 1 and Spring is September 15.

Create a CUNY Application Account or log into your CUNYfirst account

Fill out the online application

You will be presented with several pages of questions to complete. Complete the questions on each page. Freshmen applicants can select up to six college choices, while Transfer applicants can select up to four college choices. All applicants will receive an admission decision from each college listed on their application.

Pay your application fee

After you have completed each section of the application, you will be prompted to pay your application fee. You can pay online or by mail. The application fee is $65 for Freshman applicants and $70 for Transfer applicants. The application fee is non-refundable. Current CUNY students are exempt from paying the transfer application fee. Veterans of the United States Military Service, those currently on Active Duty, or members of the National Guard or Reserves may obtain an application fee waiver.

Submit your application

After you submit your application you will be able to print or download a copy of your Application Summary. You can find your CUNYfirst ID number (an 8-digit number) on your Application Summary. You will need your CUNYfirst ID number for submitting supporting documents.

Submit your supporting documents

All documents are to be mailed to the University Application Processing Center. You will need your CUNYfirst ID number when submitting supporting documents. Below is a general list of documents you will need to submit:

- High school transcript or High School Equivalency (HSE) diploma
- College, university and/or proprietary school transcript (transfers only)
- Standardized test scores
- Recommendations, personal statements, and other supporting materials
- Supplemental application for selective programs

College Programs in Prison

The following are college programs located in facilities throughout New York State. Please note that this is not an exhaustive list of all programs. If your facility is not listed here, talk to someone working in education/programs about available opportunities. Due to COVID-19, programs may be conducted by distance learning.

BARD COLLEGE—BARD PRISON INITIATIVE (BPI)

Facilities: Coxsackie, Eastern, Fishkill, Green Haven, Taconic, and Woodbourne

Degrees: Associate in Arts and Bachelor of Arts

PO Box 5000, Annandale-on-Hudson, NY 12504

Telephone: 845.758.7308

www.bpi.bard.edu

Offers full-time enrollment in a comprehensive liberal arts and science curriculum. The associate degree admission process includes an essay and interview, happens on-site at the six facilities where BPI operates, and is open to anyone with a high school diploma or equivalent. Students who complete requirements for the Bard associate degree are eligible to apply to the bachelor's degree program. As students approach release, they are eligible for reentry workshops and advising. After returning home, students are provided ongoing individualized support in areas of housing, continuing education, and career development. BPI partners with other institutions to offer paid fellowships through which alumni can gain work experience and professional connections in a variety of fields.

BENNINGTON COLLEGE—PRISON EDUCATION INITIATIVE (PEI)

Facility: Great Meadow

One College Drive, Bennington, VT 05201

Telephone: 802.442.5401

www.bennington.edu/prison-education-initiative

Offers a range of credit-bearing courses and a Bennington College associate's degree. Individuals who are interested must complete an application process including an essay, an interview, and a math evaluation to provide math course level placement if accepted. A college preparatory course may be required before joining a credit-bearing course. Applicants must have a high school diploma or equivalent. In the event that a student transfers to another facility, PEI will communicate with the college program (if one exists) at that facility and will help transfer credits. Tutorial sessions are also provided. Applications are accepted on an ongoing basis and reviewed in May and December.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY—CORNELL PRISON EDUCATION PROGRAM (CPEP)

Facilities: Auburn, Cayuga, Elmira, Five Points

Degrees: Associate in Arts with concentration in Social Sciences and the Humanities (from SUNY), Certificate in Liberal Arts (from Cornell University)

300 Kennedy Hall, Ithaca, NY 14853

Telephone: 607.255.9091

<https://cpep.cornell.edu>

Offers a comprehensive liberal arts curriculum. Applicants must have a high school diploma or equivalency, must be in good disciplinary standing, and must pass a rigorous entrance exam and academic evaluation. Preparatory classes are often encouraged for those who pass the entrance exam. Associate's degrees are awarded through SUNY Cayuga Community College and SUNY Corning Community College. Students are provided academic advisement. Also organizes guest lecture series, debate team, and the Writers Bloc literary journal, which features poetry and short stories written by students.

HUDSON LINK FOR HIGHER EDUCATION IN PRISON

PO Box 862, Ossining, New York 10562

Telephone: 914.941.0794

www.hudsonlink.org

Acts as the administrator of a variety of college programs in five different correctional facilities by partnering with nine higher education institutions. An academic coordinator is available at each of the facilities to provide academic advisement and help with reentry planning for students.

Applicants must have a high school diploma or equivalency, and be in good disciplinary standing within their facility. All applicants must agree to a facility hold because they must wait at least one semester before being accepted into the program. Once students are accepted into the program, they are required to take any necessary placement exams for the college that will be administering the courses and granting credits.

Anyone interested in the college program should write a letter of interest to the facility's Hudson Link Academic Coordinator, who will explain the admissions process.

Offers a Pre-College Program to those who are eligible for the college program but may not yet be prepared for college-level work. Hudson Link advises, assists, and supports those students who were unable to fulfill their degree requirements while incarcerated in reenrolling them to complete their degrees at various on-campus locations. Also partners with reentry organizations to provide supportive services for alumni. The Alumni Services Manager and Alumni Coordinator provide job-readiness skills including resume writing, job search assistance, interview attire, laptops, professional mentoring, and internship opportunities.

Housing for individuals convicted of a sex offense

It can be difficult to find housing providers that can meet the stipulations for both parole and Strict and Intensive Supervision and Treatment (SIST) for a person registered as a sex offender. Consequently, reentry organizations in New York City face challenging obstacles in connecting such individuals with housing providers. While some organizations do work with registered sex offenders, each individual is evaluated on a case-by-case basis, and successful placement in supportive housing takes time and is limited. For these reasons, those looking for housing immediately upon reentry are recommended to go directly to 30th Street Intake, listed on page 89.

Intake Centers for Single Adults

NYC DEPARTMENT OF HOMELESS SERVICES (DHS)— INTAKE CENTERS

www1.nyc.gov/site/dhs/shelter/singleadults/single-adults.page

DHS considers a single adult to be any person over age 18, who seeks shelter independently, unaccompanied by other adults or minors. Homeless individuals who have been in a shelter within the past 12 months should go to that shelter. Otherwise, they should go to an intake center. The intake centers for single adults are separated by gender. These centers are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, including holidays. Interpreter assistance is available for people who do not speak English. The following forms of ID are helpful during the intake process (though not required): any form of ID with a picture and proof of age (such as a driver's license, state-issued ID, passport or visa, welfare card, or green card), Social Security card, Medicaid card (if available), and the individual's most recent pay stub (if working).

Under DHS policy, all people have the right to be housed according to the gender they identify as. Shelter workers are required to call individuals by the name and pronouns they go by and to place them in a shelter that matches their gender, regardless of what their ID documents say. For more information, or for assistance if experiencing discrimination in the shelter system, contact the Sylvia Rivera Law Project at 212.337.8550 or email info@srlp.org.

What to expect

Upon visiting an intake center, individuals will be assessed for their unique needs by trained social services and professional staff, and assigned to a shelter with expertise in addressing those needs. All programs are designed to help clients overcome homelessness.

DHS programs include counseling, case management, employment training, mental health services, specialized services for veterans, substance use treatment, and programs for older people. Social workers, employment specialists, housing/vocational counselors, and health coordinators work closely with clients in an individualized approach that aims to provide clients with the skills needed to achieve the highest level of self-sufficiency.

All adults entering the shelter system are expected to work with shelter staff to accomplish this goal. Clients will be asked to follow an Independent Living Plan (ILP), participate in programs that meet their needs, and follow shelter guidelines.

Securing Shelter for Homeless Families

NYC’s shelter system is designed to provide temporary emergency shelter to families with no other housing options available to them. Before being placed in a shelter, a family must be found eligible.

In order for a family to be eligible, DHS must verify that the family is in immediate need of temporary emergency shelter. DHS will conduct an investigation to determine whether there is any other safe and appropriate place for the family to stay, even temporarily. To aid the investigation, individuals should provide any documents that will help investigators understand why they now are homeless. Examples include eviction papers, a marshal’s 72-hour notice, letters from landlords or managing agents, letters from people the individual used to live with, and documents from doctors or other professionals showing that a former apartment is no longer live-able.

Families with children

DHS considers families with children to be the following households: families with children younger than 21 years of age, pregnant people, and families with a pregnant person. All families with children must apply for shelter at DHS Prevention Assistance and Temporary Housing (PATH) intake center.

NYC DEPARTMENT OF HOMELESS SERVICES (DHS)— ADULT FAMILY INTAKE CENTER (AFIC)

400-430 East 30th Street, New York, NY 10016

Telephone: 311

www1.nyc.gov/site/dhs/shelter/families/adult-families.page

Open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, including holidays. Interpreter assistance is available for individuals who do not speak English.

Adult families

DHS considers an adult family to be any family without minor children, including the following household compositions:

- Applicants who are a legally married couple and present a valid original marriage certificate
- Applicants who are domestic partners and present a valid original domestic partnership certificate or adults who provide, as part of their application for temporary housing assistance, proof establishing the medical dependence of one applicant upon another
- Two or more adults who can provide birth certificates to prove a parent and child or sibling family relationship or share a caretaking (emotionally or physically supportive) relationship, including an aunt or uncle to niece or nephew, grandparent to grandchild, parent to child or stepchild, siblings

Clients must be able to verify that their household constitutes a family as defined above and demonstrate that they have resided with one another for 180 days (6 months) within the year immediately prior to the date of their application.

Adult families applying for shelter must have valid, original identification, such as:

- Any form of ID with a picture and proof of age, such as IDNYC
- Green card, driver's license, passport, visa, or work ID card
- Birth certificate
- Social Security card
- Medicaid card
- Identity card in the public assistance system
- If working, most recent pay stub

Each applicant is required to provide proof of residence for the past year. As such, it is always useful if clients are able to bring documents such as eviction papers or marshal's notices, leases, Con Edison or telephone bills, pay stubs, or proof of income.

Do not bring

- Any contraband, alcohol, or illegal substances (smoking is not allowed in public buildings within NYC)
- Expensive personal belongings (DHS is not responsible for lost or damaged goods)

- Friends and visitors, or anyone not a part of your family
- Food
- Furniture
- Cameras or appliances
- Pets

What to expect

If a family is found eligible, they will be placed in temporary emergency housing. When in shelter all clients will be expected to follow certain guidelines, which include:

- Following the family's Independent Living Plan (ILP), which includes the steps that need to be followed to get permanent housing
- Applying for public assistance or another type of housing subsidy
- Working closely with a caseworker or housing specialist to locate and view available apartments
- Actively seeking permanent housing for oneself and one's family by viewing available apartments several times per week
- Accepting a suitable apartment for oneself and one's family when it is offered
- Following shelter guidelines that prohibit behavior that places other clients and staff at risk

Failing to abide by these rules may have consequences including but not limited to the temporary discontinuance of shelter services.

NYC DEPARTMENT OF HOMELESS SERVICES (DHS)— PREVENTION ASSISTANCE & TEMPORARY HOUSING (PATH)

151 East 151st Street, Bronx, NY 10451

www1.nyc.gov/site/dhs/shelter/families/families-with-children-applying.page

All families with children must apply for shelter at the PATH intake center. Open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, including holidays. Processes applications Mon–Fri 9–5. Interpreter assistance is available for individuals who do not speak English.

All families who are applying for shelter at PATH must have proper identification for all members of their household, such as:

- Any form of ID with a picture and proof of age, such as a welfare ID card, green card, driver's license, passport or visa, IDNYC, or picture employment card
- Birth certificate
- Social Security card
- Medicaid card
- Identity card in the Public Assistance system
- If working, most recent pay stub

Application process

Families with children must apply for shelter in order to ensure that they do not have an alternative housing option available to them.

Once a family arrives at PATH, they will first be interviewed by a Human Resources Administration (HRA) caseworker, who will inquire about their living situation and explain the services that may help them avoid entering shelter including family mediation, anti-eviction legal services, out-of-city relocation assistance, Family Eviction Prevention Supplement (FEPS), or a deal through HRA.

If these services do not apply to a family's specific circumstances, a DHS family worker will interview the family to obtain information about their prior living situation. Families may be assigned a temporary shelter placement for up to 10 days while DHS investigates the information provided during the interview. DHS determines whether the family is eligible or ineligible for shelter, based on whether they have fully cooperated with the application and eligibility process and/or have other housing options available to them.

Every household has a right to a legal conference at PATH if they are found ineligible and disagree with the decision. In addition, they have 60 days after being found ineligible to request a Fair Hearing from New York State.

What to expect

Once a family enters a shelter they have certain responsibilities that they must meet, including obtaining and maintaining employment for all those who are able to work.

With the assistance of their caseworkers, families will develop an Independent Living Plan (ILP), a document that outlines relevant goals to exit the shelter as soon as possible. Through DHS' policy of Client Responsibility, families in a shelter must actively participate in this process and take strides toward independent living.

Families are expected to cooperate in developing and completing their ILP, which includes steps toward obtaining permanent housing:

- Applying for Public Assistance (PA) and completing all requirements necessary for establishing and maintaining eligibility for PA benefits
- If able to work, actively seeking employment and accepting a suitable job when it is offered
- Working closely with their caseworker or housing specialist to locate and view available apartments
- Actively seeking permanent housing by viewing available apartments several times per week

Halfway & Three-Quarter Housing

Halfway housing

Halfway housing is temporary housing for individuals recovering from substance use disorder or finishing a sentence post-incarceration. Halfway houses usually house people between 30 days and 2 years. Individuals can be mandated to reside in halfway housing, often after a period of incarceration. Individuals can also independently enter some facilities. Many halfway houses have strict rules of conduct that must be followed in order to remain in residence or finish a sentence. Rules often include maintaining sobriety, checking in when coming and going, and attending programs and meetings. In NYC, halfway houses are run both by government-sponsored organizations and by for-profit companies.

Three-quarter housing

Three-quarter houses are buildings that rent beds in apartments and houses. These buildings are operated by for-profit companies and are currently unregulated in NYC. Originally fed by referrals from the city shelter system, operators now also recruit tenants leaving substance use disorder units, or being discharged from hospital psychiatric units or correctional facilities. Some companies advertise support services and assistance with finding permanent housing, but the quality and frequency of these services are varied and have received criticism by residents and advocacy groups.

On page 186 of the Legal chapter, you will find the listing for Mobilization for Justice, which provides advice, counsel, and representation to residents on housing and related legal matters. Leave a message on their intake line at 212.417.3705 or call 212.417.3700 for information about where and when they meet with clients throughout NYC.

Offers a range of services including assistance with public benefits, help to prevent eviction, emergency rental assistance, financial counseling and money management, help with relocating, and short-term financial assistance.

Rentals

It is extremely difficult in most areas of NYC to find decent housing at an affordable rent. It may require time and patience for individuals to find what they are looking for. There are many websites dedicated to listing housing options, including rentals. If the help of a real estate agent is contracted, be prepared to pay a fee of up to 15 percent of a year's rent.

NYC DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT (HPD)—NYC HOUSING CONNECT (AFFORDABLE RENTAL LOTTERIES)

Telephone: 311

Affordable Housing Lottery Helpline: 212.863.7990

Call Mon and Wed 1:30–8, Tue 5:30–8, and Fri 1:30–5 for information, advice, assistance, and brief answers to rights as a tenant including information about evictions.

Tenant Rights & Housing Discrimination

In NYC, tenants have many rights relating to the safety and quality of their housing. In addition, rent regulation laws have been renewed and strengthened, including an increase in civil penalties for landlords who harass tenants.

Some people confuse fair housing rights with tenant rights. If an individual experiences difficulties with an application, lease, lease renewal, services, or rent that are believed to be the result of a discriminatory act (occurring because of one's membership in a particular protected class [e.g., race, creed, national origin]), that person should call 311 and ask for the Commission on Human Rights. See the full listing for the NYC Commission on Human Rights in the Legal chapter on page 211.

More information for renters can be found in the COVID-19 chapter, starting on page 33.

NYS DIVISION OF HOMES AND COMMUNITY RENEWAL (DHCR)—OFFICE OF RENT ADMINISTRATION

Telephone: 833.499.0343
www.nyshcr.org/rent

Tenants in rent-controlled or rent-stabilized apartments may contact DHCR with complaints and DHCR may impose penalties on building owners in the form of rent reductions if deemed valid.

NYC DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT (HPD)—TENANT RIGHTS

Telephone: 311
www1.nyc.gov/site/hpd/services-and-information/tenants-rights-and-responsibilities.page

The website contains information on tenants' rights and other resources, in multiple languages. Call for complaints about lack of heat and hot water, or a landlord's refusal to make emergency repairs in an apartment or building. Provides a handbook of New York City tenant rights called The ABCs of Housing that can be found online.

Temporary Cash Assistance

NYC HUMAN RESOURCES ADMINISTRATION (HRA)—CASH ASSISTANCE

Infoline: 718.557.1399
www1.nyc.gov/site/hra/help/cash-assistance.page

Recipients of this benefit fall into four general categories:

- Families with children under 18 (or 21 if they attend school) without sufficient means of support due to absence or incapacity of one or both parents (Aid to Dependent Children, or ADC)
- Families with dependent children without sufficient means of support because of an unemployed parent (Aid to Dependent Children with Unemployed Parent, or ADC-U)
- Certain persons in need of financial assistance for such reasons as temporary illness, layoff, or injury (Home Relief, or HR)

- Persons in need of special services

Eligible clients receiving temporary cash assistance must engage in work activities. HRA refers clients to programs designed to provide job training and placement, education, resume services, workshops, and other support services. Those participating in an approved program will receive car fare and childcare expenses so that they can meet their requirements. NYC HEALTH—MOBILE CRISIS TEAMS (MCTS)

<https://nycwell.cityofnewyork.us/en/providers/mct-referral>

A mobile crisis team is a group of health professionals, such as nurses, social workers, and psychiatrists, who can provide mental health services, primarily in people's homes. There are about two dozen teams in the city, and they are available in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Queens.

MCTS provide services 7 days a week 8am–8pm. MCTS aim to respond to all referrals within several hours of receiving the referral. Factors that may impact response time include:

- Information from the referral source about the best time to find and engage the person in crisis
- Multiple referrals received at approximately the same time resulting in a need to triage depending upon the situation
- Traffic
- Difficulty gaining entrance into the building/apartment/home

MCTs rely on a combination of public funding and insurance revenue to sustain their operations. Therefore, the MCT will collect insurance information and submit claims to your insurance provider for services rendered.

Requesting a team

To request a team, call NYC Well at 888.692.9355.

People can request help from a mobile crisis team if they are concerned about a family member, friend, or acquaintance who is experiencing (or at risk of) a psychological crisis. People can also request a team for themselves. NYC Well counselors will assess the person/situation and provide an appropriate intervention. If the person/situation is eligible for MCT services, NYC Well will send the referral to the most appropriate MCT, generally depending upon the person's age and location.

Be aware that a trained counselor will help to assess the next steps, which may include calling 911 and involving the police.

Services Provided

Mobile crisis teams can provide mental health engagement, intervention, and follow-up support, including help to overcome resistance to treatment. Depending on what a person is willing to accept, the teams may offer a range of services, including:

- Assessment
- Crisis intervention
- Supportive counseling
- Information and referrals, including to community-based mental health services

Transport to Psychiatric Emergency Room

If a mobile crisis team determines that a person in crisis needs further psychiatric or medical assessment, they can transport that person to a hospital psychiatric emergency room. Mobile crisis teams may direct police to take a person to an emergency room against their will only if they have a mental illness (or the appearance of mental illness) and are a danger to themselves or others. This is in accordance with NYS Mental Hygiene Law.

Children’s Mobile Crisis Teams provide care and short-term management for children and adolescents 20 and younger who are experiencing severe behavioral crises. All teams consist of mental health professionals and family peer advocates. Provides an in-person visit within two hours of receiving a referral 8am–10pm. Will call with a response within 30 minutes of receiving a referral 10pm–8am. For more information contact NYC Well.

Therapy Resources

Therapy can be expensive, but there are options for low-cost therapy or alternatives. When looking for a therapist, find out what type of insurance they accept, for instance private insurance, Medicaid, or Medicare, and ask if they offer sliding scale fees. Check out local colleges and universities with mental health practitioner programs as they may provide services that offer reduced rates where graduate students work under the supervision of experienced professionals. Group therapy or support groups may also provide low-cost or free services that can be a more affordable alternative to one-on-one therapy, and many organizations in Connections offer this service. The following are some online resources to find therapists.

LATINX THERAPY

www.latinxtherapy.com

An organization working to destigmatize mental health in the Latinx community. Naloxone is a medication that reverses overdoses from opioids such as heroin, fentanyl, and prescription painkillers. For more information including where to get a free naloxone kit call NYC Well at 888.692.9355 or visit <https://nycwell.cityofnewyork.us/en/naloxone>.

Fentanyl use and testing

Fentanyl is a synthetic opioid that is at least 50 times as potent as heroin and is responsible for more overdoses than any other opioid. Visit www.harmreduction.org/issues/fentanyl for information on fentanyl use, myths and facts, and overdose prevention tips.

Fentanyl test strips can identify the presence of fentanyl in unregulated drugs. They can be used to test injectable drugs, powders, and pills. Being aware if fentanyl is present allows people to implement appropriate harm reduction strategies to reduce the risk of an overdose. DoseTest sells fentanyl test strips for $1 each. The website provides information on how to use the test strips for both solid and liquid samples available at www.dosetest.com.

Basic Overdose Prevention Tips

Anyone can overdose, especially when using drugs for the first time or using after a period of not using. People who have overdosed previously are much more likely to overdose again. Overdose risk increases for those who use drugs alone. It is recommended that people who use alone let a contact know where they are and that they are using. That contact can check on a person by phone/text and notify emergency services if they don't respond.

- Fentanyl can be present in any drug and drastically increases one's risk of overdose and the strength of a particular drug can be different every single time.
- Mixing drugs can increase the risk for overdose, particularly when using benzodiazepines, alcohol, and/or opioids together.
- Have a safety plan written down that can be referred to before/during use. This can be helpful and decrease the chances of a fatal overdose. The NYS Department Of Health has a resource called Build a Safety Plan, available in English and Spanish, at www.oasas.ny.gov/prevent-overdose.
- The Never Use Alone hotline at 800.484.3731, is a number that anyone can call when they are about to use a substance. An operator will then stay on the line with the person while they use. If the person does not respond after a set amount of time after use, the operator will notify emergency services of the person's location for response.

Police Interactions: Know Your Rights

The following includes information from the ACLU that can be found at www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/stopped-by-police.

A note from ACLU: Interactions with police are stressful experiences that can go bad quickly. The following information describes what the law requires and also offers strategies for handling police encounters. The burden of de-escalation does not fall on private citizens—it falls on police officers. However, you cannot assume officers will behave in a way that protects your safety or that they will uphold your rights even after you assert them. You may be able to reduce risk to yourself by staying calm and not exhibiting hostility toward the officers. The truth is that there are situations where people have done everything they could to de-escalate a police encounter, yet still were injured or killed.

For information on alternatives to calling the police for someone who is experiencing a crisis, see page 145. Be aware that for this service a trained counselor will help to assess the most appropriate next steps, which may include calling 911 and involving the police.

Your rights

- You have the right to remain silent. To exercise that right, say so out loud.
- You have the right to refuse to consent to a search of yourself, your car, your home, or your electronic devices. To exercise that right, say so out loud.
- If you are not under arrest, you have the right to walk away.
- You have the right to a lawyer if you are arrested. Ask for one immediately.

How to reduce risk to yourself

- Try to stay calm.
- Do not run, resist, or obstruct the officers.
- Keep your hands where the police can see them.
- Do not lie or give false documents.

If you are stopped for questioning

- Ask, “Am I free to leave?” If the officer says yes, calmly and silently walk away. If you are being detained or under arrest, you have a right to know why.
- If police say you are not free to leave, then you are being detained, but not necessarily arrested. You may be asked for identification and although you are not legally required to carry an ID in New York City, in many cases it’s safer to show an ID.
- You have the right to remain silent and cannot be punished for refusing to answer questions. If you wish to remain silent, say aloud, “I am choosing to remain silent.”
- Everything you say or do can and will be used against you in a court of law. Remember that law enforcement is specially trained to use your words and actions to justify arrest, prosecution, and conviction.
- You do not have to consent to a search of yourself or your belongings, but police may pat down your outermost clothing if they suspect you have a weapon. You should not physically resist, but you have the right to refuse consent for any further search. If you do consent, it can affect you later in court. Say out loud, “I do not consent to this search.”

If you are stopped in your car

- Both drivers and passengers have the right to remain silent. If you are a passenger, you can ask if you are free to leave. If yes, calmly leave if you choose.
- Stop the car in a safe place as quickly as possible. Turn off the car, turn on the internal light, open the window and place your hands on the wheel. Avoid making sudden movements.
- Upon request, show police your driver’s license, registration, and proof of insurance.
- If an officer or immigration agent asks to look inside your car, you can refuse to consent to the search and should say so out loud. But if police believe your car contains evidence of a crime, your car can be searched without your consent.

If police officers come to your home

- You do not have to let them in unless they have certain kinds of warrants, signed by a judge.
- Ask the officer to slip the warrant under the door or hold it up to the window so you can inspect it. A search warrant allows police to enter the address listed on the warrant, but officers can only search the areas and for the items listed. An arrest warrant allows police to enter the home of the person listed on the warrant if they believe the person is inside.
- Even if officers have a warrant, you have the right to remain silent. If you choose to speak to the officers, step outside and close the door.

If you are arrested

- For your safety, do not resist arrest, even if you believe the arrest is unfair.
- Say you wish to remain silent and ask for a lawyer immediately. Do not give any explanations or excuses. If you can't pay for a lawyer, you have the right to a free one. Do not say anything, sign anything, or make any decisions without a lawyer.
- If you have been arrested contact Good Call at 833.346.6322 (833.3.GOODCALL) for free legal support.
- You have the right to make a local phone call. The police cannot listen or record your call if you call a lawyer.
- Prepare yourself and your family in case you are arrested. Memorize the phone numbers of your family and your lawyer. Make emergency plans if you have children or take medication.
- If bail is set and you can't afford it, ask your lawyer about contacting a bail fund.

DNA Collection

In New York, the police are required to get a warrant or court order before taking your DNA. Ways to protect against unwarranted DNA collection include:

- Stating aloud that you do not consent to the police taking your DNA swab without a warrant or court order.
- Avoiding drinking, smoking, or chewing gum in police custody, as used items have your DNA on them.
- Keeping your mask and other PPE as you go through the arrest process, as those items have your DNA on them.
- Parents with a child in custody can tell the police that they do not consent to any collection of their child's DNA either through a swab or from something the child ate or drank.

If you feel your rights have been violated

- Remember, it can be dangerous to challenge police misconduct on the street. Do not physically resist officers or threaten to file a complaint.
- Write down everything you remember, including officers' badge and patrol car numbers, which agency the officers were from, and any other details. Get contact information for witnesses. If you are injured, seek medical attention and take photographs of your injuries.
- File a written complaint with the agency's internal affairs division and/or the civilian complaint board. In most cases, you can file a complaint anonymously if you wish. Visit www1.nyc.gov/site/ccrb/index.page or call 800.341.2272 to file a complaint to the NYC Civilian Complaint Review Board.

What you can do if you witness police abuse or brutality

- You have a right to record or photograph police interactions, as long as you do not interfere with or obstruct their movements.
- Do not try to hide the fact that you are recording. When they are performing their jobs, police officers do not have the same privacy protections as civilians. However, recording or photographing civilians without their permission can put them at risk for additional surveillance or legal action.
- Police officers are not allowed to confiscate or demand to view your photographs or video without a warrant, and they may not delete your photographs or video under any circumstances. If an officer orders you to stop recording or orders you to hand over your phone, you should politely but firmly tell the officer that you do not consent to doing so, and remind the officer that taking photographs or video is your right under the First Amendment. Be aware that some officers may arrest you for refusing to comply even though their orders are illegal. The arrest would be unlawful, but you will need to weigh the personal risks of arrest (including the risk that officers may search you and your phone upon arrest) against the value of continuing to record.
- Whether or not you are able to record everything, write down everything you remember, including officers' badge and patrol car numbers, which agency the officers were from, how many officers were present and what their names were, any use of weapons (including less-lethal weapons such as Tasers or batons), and any injuries suffered by the person stopped. If you are able to speak to the person stopped by police after the police leave, they may find your contact information helpful in case they decide to file a complaint or pursue a lawsuit against the officers.

In Public Housing

- You have the same rights as anyone else on the street or in private housing.
- Police can approach you inside public housing if they think you are violating a NYCHA House Rule, such as hanging out in the lobby. They may ask for ID and ask questions about what you're doing and where you're going. But, unless they have "reasonable suspicion" that you have, are, or are about to commit a crime, you have the right to walk away and not answer their questions. You should handle this situation like any other police interaction.
- If police check to verify whether you are a resident or a resident's guest, they are detaining you in a "stop." They cannot do this unless they have reasonable suspicion that you are trespassing or committing another crime. If police believe you are trespassing in public housing, they may give you the opportunity to leave before arresting you. If police ask you to leave and you don't, they may arrest you.
- It is the NYPD's policy that they can arrest anyone, including residents, found on the roof, roof landing (top of the stairs), or other alleged "restricted areas" regardless of what you are doing there.

Protest Safety & Rights

It's important to understand the risks of attending a protest, including the risk of arrest and detention, which have different implications for different people, including legal complications and safety risks for people with previous criminal legal system involvement, undocumented immigrants, people with disabilities, transgender and gender nonconforming people, and others.

The following information is compiled from the ACLU, NYCLU, and the Legal Aid Society. For more information on rights to protest visit www.legalaidnyc.org/get-help/arrests-policing/what-you-need-to-know-about-protesting.

You Have the Right to Protest

- New Yorkers have the constitutional right to engage in protest activity on public sidewalks and streets, and in public parks. This includes the right to distribute flyers or leaflets; the right to hold press conferences, demonstrations, and rallies; and the right to march on public sidewalks and in public streets. The City can impose restrictions, and in some instances requires a permit.
- The police may issue a dispersal order. If they do, they are obliged to provide clear notice and an opportunity for you to leave the area.

General Information if You Are Arrested

- If you are detained, questioned, or arrested, it is your right to remain silent. Anything you say can be used against you or others.
- If you are arrested, it is your right to ask for a lawyer immediately. The National Lawyers Guild specializes in representing people arrested during protests. The phone number of the NYC Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild is: 212.679.6018.
- If you or someone you know was falsely arrested or a victim of police misconduct during a protest, contact the Legal Aid Society at 212.298.3303.

Protections Against Surveillance at Protests

- The police can view photos and video to see who attended a protest, and they can use face recognition tools to match one's identity to existing records. Protesters can wear a face mask, hat, and sunglasses to limit their exposure.
- Leave your car at home. Police can use automated license plate readers to track protestors. If you can, ride a bicycle or walk to prevent your license plate being tracked.
- Wear nondescript, solid colors, and cover identifying features such as tattoos.

Protect Your Digital Security

Every electronic device that you have with you has the potential to be taken by law enforcement if you are arrested. More information on how law enforcement agencies extract data from cellphones, including location data, is on page 178.

You have the right to refuse a search of your devices and you are not required to unlock your device for police. To ensure your refusal is known, you can state it out loud if asked. If your phone is confiscated, attempting to remotely wipe your device can result in criminal charges against you.

Ways to protect digital security include:

- Disabling face/fingerprint unlock on your phone and using strong passcodes of 10 characters or more.
- Turning off GPS, Bluetooth, WiFi, and all location services on your phone and on individual apps.
- Reviewing your social media privacy settings to limit who can see your posts and accounts.
- Do not tag or post identifiable images of people without their permission. Doing so puts people at risk for additional surveillance.
- Encrypted messaging and calling apps are used to send and receive texts and calls privately. Encrypted apps, such as the free app Signal, often have a disappearing messages feature for added security, where texts are automatically deleted after a set period of time and cannot be recovered.
- Put your phone on airplane mode. Enabling airplane mode when you are not communicating reduces the amount of radio signals your device transmits while you are protesting and limits your location from being tracked.

For more information about digital surveillance and protesting, visit the guide by the Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) at <https://ssd.eff.org/en/module/attending-protest>.

Defend Our Movements is a web-based clearinghouse with useful information about protecting your devices and data. The digital self-defense curriculum is available at www.defendourmovements.org/resource/digital-self-defense-curriculum.

Digital Policing & Surveillance

New technology has given law enforcement agencies (such as the NYPD, ICE, and the FBI) more tools to use when policing. Digital information is being collected and stored, and law enforcement agencies use this information to watch, assess, and arrest people. Laws have struggled to keep up when it comes to people's digital privacy rights, meaning that digital surveillance is currently used without many regulations.

Advanced technology used by federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies includes predictive policing, automated decision-making and risk-assessment systems, face and speaker recognition, and other digital surveillance tools. These tools use artificial intelligence and algorithms, and it is not always publicly known how, where, or when they are being used.

Collected digital information is used to create files on specific people, or to create databases of groups of people. Law enforcement databases can be over-inclusive and racially discriminatory because the data collected reflects biased assessments and existing surveillance. The gang database created and used by the NYPD does not require any evidence of criminality or suspicion of wrongdoing in order for a person to be added. People are not notified when they are included in the database, and minors may be added to the NYPD gang database without parental notification. There is no official way to challenge inclusion and no criteria or protocol for removal from the gang database.

The NYPD has stated that there are two ways in which a person can be added to the database. One way is if a person admits to police that they are a gang member, if they make an admission on social media, or if they are identified as a gang member by two of what the police consider reliable sources. The second way is if a person meets two or more of the following criteria: being in a location associated with a gang, wearing colors associated with a gang, using hand signs associated with a gang, having tattoos associated with a gang, and association with gang members in person or online, such as connections on social media ("liking," being tagged in pictures, or commenting on posts).

Visit the Legal Aid Society's webpage at <https://legallaidfoil.backspace.com> for more information on the gang database, including information on submitting a Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) request about being in the gang database.

Phone Surveillance in NYC and NYS Facilities

Securus Technologies, LLC (also known as JPay) is a prison technologies firm that delivers telephone services in New York State Department of Correction and Community Supervision (DOCCS) and New York City Department of Correction (DOC) facilities.

Phone calls and conversations made by people who are currently incarcerated in New York are recorded, logged, and analyzed. Speaker recognition technology is used to identify people by their voice. Those who are currently incarcerated are required to record their voice in order to gain access to use the phone system. With each person's voice on file, the technology can identify who is speaking within the first few seconds of each phone call. The people who they speak to on the phone (friends, families, advisers, minor children, etc.) can be identified by their voices and included in a database that can compare voices and identify potential matches. A loved one who accepts a call from a facility may not be able to be identified by name, but the system can record information such as their phone number, their location, how often they call, who they are in conversation with, and what they say. Additionally, the voices of previously incarcerated people will remain in the database and those people would be identifiable by name if they accepted a call from a facility. Background conversations of people not on the call can also be picked up and recorded.

In addition to identifying who is speaking on a phone call, JPay is also able to conduct real-time, undetectable monitoring by live investigators. The investigators are automatically alerted when a "flagged" person places a phone call, and they are immediately connected to that call. Further, their technology can identify "suspicious" key words or phrases and suspected criminal activity. JPay's methods of defining suspicious key words, or what constitutes suspected criminal activity, are proprietary and therefore not public knowledge.

Some phone calls are considered private, such as those subject to attorney-client privilege, and certain phone numbers can be registered as “private,” automatically eliminating them from monitoring or recording, and listing them as “private” in call logs. However, JPay does not publicly share information about how it remains accountable for following protocols around private phone calls.

Further privacy issues arise regarding data storage and retention. Other users with access to the database, such as local police departments or district attorney’s offices, can retain recordings indefinitely, with the ability to copy recorded conversations onto any external device connected to the user’s personal computer.

It is important to be aware of these privacy risks and to use the phone system in any facility with caution.

For more information visit the Surveillance Technology Oversight Project (STOP)’s website at www.stopspying.org/listening-beyond-the-bars.

Changes to NYC DOC Family Video Visiting

Due to COVID-19, in-person visits at NYC DOC facilities are still limited and can be scheduled in advance online. Televisits, which can be done using any electronic device with a camera, an internet connection, and an active email account, are still being offered as an alternative. Televisits impact visitor privacy and all family visits are recorded. The new protocol to record all family visits does not align with previously established minimum standards of visitor privacy. Incarcerated people and their families should be aware of the privacy implications.

According to NYC Board of Corrections Minimum Standards (policies that define the rights of incarcerated people and their families in NYC), family visits should be considered private. The standards that govern surveillance of family visiting are outlined in the NYC Administrative Code, Title 40, section § 1-09 (g), and read as follows:

(5) Supervision shall be provided during visits solely to ensure that the safety or security of the facility is maintained.

(6) Visits shall not be listened to or monitored unless a lawful warrant is obtained, although visual supervision should be maintained.

The full text of the NYC Board of Corrections Minimum Standards can be found at <https://codelibrary.amlegal.com/codes/newyorkcity/latest/NYCrules/0-0-0-79126>.

Phone calls are also regularly recorded, however a significant difference is that loved ones do not need to pre-register personal information in order to receive a phone call from a DOC facility. (It is still important to be aware that one's voice is recorded, along with the content of their conversation, and the phone number and location being called.) In contrast, televisits require a visitor's name, address, date of birth, phone number, email address, and a scan or photo of a valid government-issued ID. With a televisit, personal identifiable information about each visitor is recorded and kept indefinitely, along with video and audio of each visit that is retained for 90 days. The DOC states that, "Any statements made during your visit can be shared with law enforcement." If a DOC Investigator or legal subpoena from another law enforcement agency requests a copy of a televisit video within 90 days, DOC will share a copy with the requesting unit

Be aware of what you post on social media

Law enforcement agencies use social media in many ways including browsing social media (Facebook, Instagram, etc.), creating fake profiles and pages (to gain access to both public and non-public information), and monitoring and tracking search words and hashtags (#s) people use on social media websites. Law enforcement agencies also monitor friend connections, people you follow, people who follow you, group page affiliations, and "likes" to create a profile on a person. Be aware that there are ways for law enforcement agencies to access more information (such as location data) on things you post, such as videos or images.

It is important to remember that anything you post publicly, either on a public page or in public groups, can be legally used against you or another person. No subpoena is required for accessing public data like this. Even if you use privacy settings, everything you post online is in some way accessible to everyone. While you may be able to delete a post or your profile later, during the time between making the post and deleting it, law enforcement may have already preserved a copy or someone may have saved it or posted it somewhere where you do not have the ability to delete it. Do not post something online if you do not want everyone (including law enforcement agencies) to see it.

Cell phones

To search phones, law enforcement agencies use mobile device forensic tools (MDFTs), a powerful technology that allows police to extract a full copy of data from a cell phone. All emails, texts, photos, location, app data, and more can then be programmatically searched. If the police take away your phone, you may not get it back easily. Back up your data regularly and store that backup in a safe place.

For more information UpTurn has published a comprehensive report called Mass Extraction: The Widespread Power of U.S. Law Enforcement to Search Mobile Phones, available online at www.upturn.org/reports/2020/mass-extraction.

Location data and how police use it

Law enforcement agencies use location data from cell phones to find and track people. Your cell phone itself, and nearly every individual app on your phone, can track your location. Turning off or disallowing the location tracking in the settings of your phone will limit the ability for your phone to be tracked.

When you have location enabled for an app, that information is stored and law enforcement agencies can issue a warrant to see your cell phone's location. For example, Google keeps location information and the history is detailed enough to describe the street-by-street movements of a person. You can go through the settings on your cell phone and check to see if location services are enabled for the apps on your phone.

Resources

The Electronic Frontier Foundation (EFF) works to protect online privacy. EFF's project Surveillance Self-Defense is a website that offers tips, tools, and how-tos for safer online communication, that can be accessed at <https://ssd.eff.org/en>. The website provides basic information on how online surveillance works and tool guides with instructions on installing secure applications that can help protect your privacy. The Further Learning section has tips on how to reduce the risk to yourself in different scenarios, such as being in Facebook Groups, protecting yourself on social networks, things to consider when crossing the border, and more.

Defend Our Movements is a web-based clearinghouse with useful information about protecting your devices and data. The digital self-defense curriculum is available at www.defendourmovements.org/resource/digital-self-defense-curriculum.

The Surveillance Technology Oversight Project (STOP) litigates and advocates for privacy, fighting discriminatory and excessive local and state-level surveillance. Research and more information can be found at www.stopspying.org including how to request Know Your Rights training and workshops.

The Brennan Center for Justice has a resource called New York City Police Department Surveillance Technology, which provides an overview of the NYPD's surveillance technology, based on publicly available information, as well as the potential impact of the use of these tools, in chart form available online at www.brennancenter.org/our-work/research-reports/new-york-city-police-department-surveillance-technology.

Encrypted messaging and calling apps are used to send and receive texts and calls privately. Encrypted apps, such as the free app Signal, often have a disappearing messages feature for added security, where texts are automatically deleted after a set period of time and cannot be recovered. More information on Signal is available at www.signal.org. Another way to ensure that law enforcement agencies cannot access the data on your phone is to use strong passwords for the phone itself and for individual apps.

Representation & Assistance

Discovery Law

In 2020, New York State replaced its discovery law with a new statute that requires evidence sharing between the prosecution and defense on an accelerated timeline—emphasizing the right of someone to fully understand any charges before making any decisions about accepting a plea bargain. Three months later, the statute was amended, relaxing the timeline and limiting disclosure of certain witnesses’ identifying information.

THE BRONX DEFENDERS

360 East 161st Street, Bronx, NY 10451
Telephone: 718.838.7878 / Emergency Hotline: 347.778.1266
www.bronxdefenders.org

A public defender organization representing Bronx residents in civil, criminal, family, housing, and immigration court, as well as public benefits matters. Provides reentry services and advocacy on behalf of individuals eligible for alternative-to-incarceration programs. In case of a legal emergency in the Bronx involving the police or Administration for Children’s Services (ACS), call the 24-hour emergency hotline.

BROOKLYN DEFENDER SERVICES (BDS)

177 Livingston Street, 7th Floor, Brooklyn, NY 11201
Telephone: 718.254.0700
Family Defense Practice: 347.592.2500 www.bds.org

Provides free legal representation to people who cannot afford an attorney. Attorneys are assigned cases by the court system, but can provide referrals, legal education, and brief legal advice on a case-by-case basis. Attorneys specialize in criminal defense for people arrested in Brooklyn, family defense for parents or caretakers with an open ACS (child welfare) case or who are being investigated by ACS, and immigration cases for people at risk of deportation. Provides additional legal and social work services for clients, including civil legal advocacy, such as educational needs of clients or their children, housing and benefits advocacy, affirmative immigration applications, and reentry support.

COMMUNITY SERVICE SOCIETY

Legal Hotline: 646.759.8088

Offers advice, brief service, and legal representation for individuals facing barriers to reentry in employment, licensing, housing, and civic engagement. Attorneys also represent individuals in motions to seal convictions. All services are free of charge.

See the full listing for Community Service Society on page 120.

THE EXONERATION INITIATIVE (EXI)

233 Broadway, Suite 2370, New York, NY 10279

www.exonerationinitiative.org

Provides free legal assistance to wrongfully convicted people in New York on cases that lack DNA evidence. Cases are reviewed with a focus on weak evidence that has recently proven unreliable such as mistaken eyewitnesses, false confessions, police misconduct, and perjury. Participants or their family members can write or call directly for case evaluation forms, or complete the forms online.

FEDERAL DEFENDERS OF NEW YORK

Eastern District

One Pierrepont Plaza, 16th Floor, Brooklyn, NY 11201

Telephone: 718.330.1200

Southern District

52 Duane Street, 10th Floor, New York, NY 10007

Telephone: 212.417.8700

Defends those accused of federal crimes who cannot afford representation. Clients are referred from the court. Also represents clients on appeals and continues to provide help with reentry programs for recently released people with substance use disorder and mental illness. The Eastern District serves Brooklyn, Queens, Staten Island, and Long Island. The Southern District serves Manhattan, the Bronx, and counties north of New York City. Can be contacted through an individual's public defender.

GOOD CALL

Telephone: 833.346.6322

www.goodcall.nyc

A hotline and emergency contact directory designed to assist people in NYC immediately after an arrest. Call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, for free immediate legal support.

When someone is arrested, their phone is taken away, and they may not have memorized the phone numbers of all the people they want to reach. When someone calls the hotline, they are connected to a free lawyer. If the person arrested has saved their loved ones' contact information in Good Call's directory, their new lawyer can search the directory to get in touch with friends and family. Family members and friends can also add their own information to make sure they are alerted and connected with a lawyer in case their loved ones are arrested. The service is free and confidential.

THE INNOCENCE PROJECT

40 Worth Street, Suite 701, New York, NY 10013

Telephone: 212.364.5340

www.innocenceproject.org

Represents clients seeking post-conviction DNA testing to prove their innocence. Only considers cases 1) that are post-conviction, 2) that have physical evidence that, if subjected to DNA testing, will prove that the defendant is actually innocent, 3) where the defendant was convicted of a crime, and 4) where the crime occurred in the United States, but not Arizona, California, Illinois, Michigan, or Ohio. Contact by mail with a filled out intake form, which is available on the website.

LAMBDA LEGAL

120 Wall Street, 19th Floor, New York, NY 10005

Telephone: 212.809.8585

www.lambdalegal.org

Provides help and advocacy for the LGBTQI+ community and those living with HIV who have faced discrimination of any kind. The website includes rights publications and other resources. The Help Desk provides information and resources regarding discrimination related to sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, and HIV status. Please note that calls will not be initially answered by an attorney and that help desk analysts cannot give legal advice. Walk-ins not accepted.

LEGAL ACTION CENTER (LAC)

225 Varick Street, New York, NY 10014

Telephone: 212.243.1313

www.lac.org

Provides free legal services for New Yorkers who face employment barriers or illegal discrimination based on their records of arrest and conviction. Services include help getting free NYS rap sheets (arrest and conviction records) and correcting rap sheet errors, applying for Certificates of Relief from Disabilities and Certificates of Good Conduct, obtaining employment licenses, and understanding eligibility for record sealing. Additional free legal services are available for people with experience of substance use disorder or living with HIV or AIDS, including addressing illegal discrimination, health privacy rights, and barriers to obtaining medication for opioid use disorder. LEGAL AID SOCIETY

199 Water Street, 3rd Floor, New York, NY 10038
Telephone: 212.577.3300
Prisoners Rights Project: 212.577.3530 (Mon–Fri 9–5 for conditions in prison or jail)
www.legal-aid.org

Offers free legal counsel and advice to NYC residents who cannot afford a private lawyer. Please contact the civil office in your local borough if you have legal questions about housing, benefits, disability, domestic violence, family issues, health, employment, immigration, HIV/AIDS, and elder law. Please contact the criminal office in the borough where you were arrested if you need an attorney in a criminal trial, appeal, parole revocation, or prison condition concern. The juvenile rights practice provides representation for children who appear before the family court in matters involving child protective proceedings, juvenile delinquency, people in need of supervision (PINS), and in appellate cases involving children. Legal Aid provides free representation to low-income individuals.

The Parole Revocation Defense Unit can provide legal representation and social work diversion services to a person who is charged with violating the conditions of their release. An attorney will be appointed to the individual at their first hearing. If the individual is not eligible for a Legal Aid lawyer, they can write the supreme court of the county they are in to request court-appointed counsel. If an individual has a parole problem anywhere outside the five boroughs of NYC, they must write to the local court of that area.

Bail

Bail Update

In January 2020, bail legislation was implemented eliminating money bail and pretrial detention in many cases. Three months later, NYS passed a series of amendments, which went into effect in July 2020. These revisions made more cases eligible again for bail and detention.

In the initial reform, money bail and detention were eliminated for nearly all misdemeanor and nonviolent felony cases. The amended reform makes more than two dozen additional charges eligible for bail and detention. The revisions also create new categories of defendants eligible for detention, such as individuals charged with a new case and a still pending case involving “harm to an identifiable person or property,” even when neither charge is otherwise eligible for bail. State law contains no definition of such “harm.”

New Release Conditions

As introduced in the original statute, the amended law retains a presumption of release in all cases, unless there is a “risk of flight to avoid prosecution.” In cases where a risk is considered to exist, judges must use the “least restrictive condition(s)” necessary to assure the accused will return to court and comply with court conditions. The revised law adds to the list of nonmonetary conditions. Along with options such as pretrial supervision or travel restrictions, judges can impose conditions such as counseling, treatment, or intimate partner violence programming; maintaining employment or school attendance; or measures regarding victim safety.

For more information on the amended law and the impact on bail reform please visit www.courtinnovation.org/publications/bail-revisited-NYS.

The following information is compiled from the NYC 311 website. For more information visit <https://portal.311.nyc.gov/article/?kanumber=KA-01398>.

What is bail?

Bail is an amount of money set by a judge at court. The stated purpose is to ensure that a defendant attends future court dates. If a defendant’s family or friends are able to provide the cash bail to the court (to post bail), the defendant is released before trial and must attend all court dates. If a defendant does not show up for a court date, the court may keep the bail (the money has been forfeited) and issue a warrant for the defendant’s arrest. If a defendant makes all court appearances, the bail will be refunded back, minus a 3% fee if the defendant is found or pleads guilty. If a defendant cannot post bail, they will be held at a Department of Correction (DOC) facility until bail is paid, the case has been disposed of, or they are released for another reason. A judge can set a bond instead of bail. A bond is a legal contract that requires someone to pay money if the defendant does not appear at a court date.

When is bail set?

Bail is generally set at the first court appearance (arraignment), which must occur within 24 hours of the defendant's arrest. If the defendant pleads not guilty at arraignment, a judge has four release options. They may release the defendant on their own recognizance, meaning the defendant is free to go without paying any money or providing a bond; the judge may set bail in various forms, which the defendant (or friends or family) must post to be released; the judge may release the defendant to a supervised release program, which will require the defendant to check in by phone and in person; and lastly, for certain felonies, bail may be denied and the defendant will be remanded to DOC custody.

How to pay bail in person

To post bail, you must present personal identification and provide the New York State Identification (NYSID) or Book and Case number of the person to be bailed.

Bail will be accepted in any of the following forms:

- US cash for the full amount;
- Cashier's/teller's check, in any amount not exceeding the bail figure;
- Money order from Federal Express, US Postal Service, Travelers Express Company, Western Union, or a private bank—up to $1,000
- Credit or debit card

Personal checks are not accepted. Cashier's checks, teller's checks, or money orders must be made payable to the New York City Department of Correction. The amount of each money order must not exceed $1,000. If the total bail amount is more than $1,000, you can pay with multiple money orders or a combination of money orders, checks, and cash. The total amount you pay must exactly match the bail amount. No change will be provided.

Call 311 for the most updated list of locations where you can pay bail. At the time of publication, you can pay bail in person 24 hours a day, 7 days a week at any of the following DOC facilities:

Brooklyn Detention Complex
275 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, NY 11201

Manhattan Detention Complex
125 White Street, New York, NY 10013

Queens Detention Complex
126-01 82nd Avenue, Kew Gardens, NY 11415

Vernon C. Bain Center
1 Halleck Street, Bronx, NY 10474

Rikers Island
16-16 Hazen Street, East Elmhurst, NY 11370

For individuals housed at Horizon Juvenile Center, bail may be paid at Horizon or at any of the above locations. However, Horizon cannot accept payments for individuals detained at other facilities.

Bail can also be paid at the Bronx Criminal Court, Lower Level, Room M-05C, 7 days a week, 8am–1am.

How to pay bail online?

You can pay bail online if:

- A judge has set credit card bail as a form of bail payment for that individual
- The individual doesn't have any surety conditions, such as a surety interview
- DOC has logged the individual's bail conditions into their Inmate Lookup Service

Online bail payment is not available on any court dates following arraignment. If you want to pay bail on any court date other than arraignment, you should pay directly at the courthouse's cashier window.

To pay bail online, you first need to look up the individual using their first and last name, NYSID, or Book and Case Number, using the DOC Inmate Lookup Service online at www1.nyc.gov/site/doc/inmate-info/inmate-lookup.page. There may be a short waiting period after arraignment before the individual's information is logged into the system.

If bail is eligible to be paid online, clicking on the Pay Bail button on the Inmate Details page will take you to a new page where you can begin the transaction. If the Pay Bail button is grayed out, then the individual isn't eligible for online bail payment yet, or their information has not yet been entered into the system.

The online payment system accepts credit and debit cards and can be used to pay bails of any amount. You will be charged a non-refundable 2% fee per transaction.

If you have questions about whether an individual is eligible for bail, contact the individual's attorney.

If the person you are paying bail for has a warrant, hold, or additional case, they may not be released until those additional issues are resolved. You will receive a refund from the Department of Finance roughly eight weeks after the case for which you paid bail has been resolved. Your refund will not include the 2% online bail processing fee. An additional 3% will be taken if the defendant is found guilty.

What if the defendant misses a court appearance?

If a defendant misses a court appearance, the judge may issue a court order for the Department of Finance (DOF) to keep the cash bail, called a "forfeit order." You should receive a letter notifying you that your cash bail has been forfeited by the court. You should contact the court that ordered the forfeiture or the District Attorney's Office within 45 days of the date of the letter to learn the reason for the forfeiture. There is a procedure called "remission of forfeiture" which allows you to apply for the cash bail to be returned once it has been forfeited. You may want to hire a lawyer to help you with this, but you can also do it on your own. You must apply for this remission within one year of the date that the court ordered the bail forfeited.

What is a commercial bail bond?

Commercial bail bondsmen charge a fee and require collateral from a defendant's friends and family to write a bond and post that bond with the court to secure a defendant's release pretrial.

Commercial bail bond providers commonly charge 10% of the total bail, plus collateral. The collateral required is typically property, including real estate and cars, and a judge must sign-off on the bail bond and the amount of collateral. By issuing a bail bond, the bondsman commits to paying the court the full amount of the defendant's bail, should the defendant fail to return to court. If you have the cash for bail available, you may prefer to pay the bail directly, because that way you will avoid fees charged by commercial bail bondsmen.

Voting Registration & Rights

Voting with a Conviction Record in New York

In 2021, legislation to permanently and automatically restore the right of people on parole to vote in all elections was signed into law. Unless currently incarcerated from a felony conviction, New Yorkers with a conviction record are eligible to vote.

In New York, you can vote with a conviction record if you:

- were convicted of a misdemeanor; or
- are on parole; or
- are on probation; or
- were not sentenced to prison or had your prison sentence suspended; or
- served your maximum prison sentence; or
- were pardoned.

You are eligible to vote while serving a misdemeanor sentence or if you are incarcerated pre-sentence on any charges. You may be eligible to vote while serving a local jail sentence for a felony conviction if you have been granted a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities for that conviction. If you are serving a felony sentence in state prison, you will not be eligible to vote until your release. You must re-register to vote after you have served your maximum sentence or are released on parole.

You may still register and vote in New York if you have completed either a federal felony conviction, or a felony conviction in another state.

If you plan to vote, you must register to vote if:

- you have never registered to vote, or
- you registered to vote before being sentenced to jail or prison for a felony conviction.

You can register through the Department of Motor Vehicles website at www.dmv.org/ny-new-york/voter-registration.php or by providing a paper form in person or by mail to your county board of elections.

If you are in jail awaiting trial or serving time for a misdemeanor or violation you may vote with an absentee ballot. You must complete and mail an absentee ballot request form. To request an absentee ballot application you can call the Board of Elections in New York City at 866.868.3692.

Ranked Choice Voting

In 2019, New Yorkers passed a ballot measure to use ranked choice voting. This means that for some elections for city offices, voters can now rank up to five candidates in order of preference instead of choosing just one.

If a candidate receives more than 50% of 1st-choice votes, they are the winner. If no candidate earns more than 50% of 1st-choice votes, then counting will continue in rounds. At the end of each round, the candidate with the fewest votes will be eliminated. If you ranked the eliminated candidate 1st, your vote will go to the next highest ranked candidate on your ballot. This process will continue until there are two candidates left. The candidate with the most votes wins.

For more information about ranked choice voting including when and which elections will use it, how votes are counted, and more visit NYC Votes at www.voting.nyc.

Your Right to Vote

The following information is from www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/voting-rights and outlines some scenarios that may come up when trying to exercise the right to vote.

If you run into any problems or have questions on Election Day, call the Election Protection Hotline:

- English: 866.687.8683
- Spanish: 888.839.8682
- Arabic: 844.925.5287
- Bengali, Cantonese, Hindi, Urdu, Korean, Mandarin, Tagalog, or Vietnamese: 888.274.8683

General rights on Election Days

Your rights:

- If the polls close while you're still in line, stay in line—you have the right to vote.

- If you make a mistake on your ballot, ask for a new one.
- If the machines are down at your polling place, ask for a paper ballot.

Your rights if the poll worker says your name is not on the list of registered voters:

- Voters are entitled to a provisional ballot, even if they aren't in the poll book.
- After Election Day, election officials must investigate whether you are qualified to vote and registered. If you are qualified and registered, they will count your provisional ballot.

What to do:

- Ask the poll worker to double-check for your name on the list of registered voters. Make sure to spell your name out for the poll worker.
- If your name is not on the list, ask if there is a supplemental list of voters.
- If the poll worker still cannot find your name, confirm that you are at the correct polling place. Request that the poll workers check a statewide system (if one is available) to see if you are registered to vote at a different polling place. If the poll worker does not have access to a statewide system, ask them to call the main election office. If you are registered at a different location, in most instances you will have to travel to that location to cast a regular ballot.
- If the poll worker still cannot find your name or if you cannot travel to the correct polling place, ask for a provisional ballot.

Voters with a disability

Your rights:

- Under federal law, all polling places for federal elections must be fully accessible to older adults and voters with disabilities. Simply allowing curbside voting is not enough to meet Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) accessibility requirements.
- In federal elections, every polling place must have at least one voting system that allows voters with disabilities to vote privately and independently. Usually, this is a machine that can read the ballot to you (for people with vision disabilities or dyslexia), and let you vote by pushing buttons (for people with mobility disabilities).

- Under federal law, voters with disabilities and voters who have difficulty reading or writing English have the right to receive in-person help at the polls from the person of their choice. This helper cannot be the voter's employer, an agent of the voter's employer, or an agent or officer of the voter's union. The helper must respect the voter's privacy, not looking at the voter's ballot unless the voter asks them to do so.
- Election officials (including poll workers) must make reasonable accommodations as needed to help you vote.
- Election officials must provide you with help if it's possible for them to do so.
- A voter with a mental disability cannot be turned away from the polls because a poll worker thinks they are not 'qualified' to vote.

What to do:

- You can bring a family member, friend, or another person of your choice to assist you at the polls. Do not bring your employer or an agent of your employer or union.
- If you bring a person to assist you, let the poll workers know that when you check-in. They may ask you to swear under oath that you have a disability and that you have asked that person to help you. Your helper may also be required to sign a form swearing that they did not tell you how to vote.
- If there are long lines and you have a physical or mental health condition or disability that makes it difficult for you to stand in line, tell a poll worker.
- Tell election officials what you need. For example, if it's hard for you to stand, they should provide you with a chair or a place to sit while you wait. If the crowds or noise are hard for you, election officials can find a quiet place for you to wait and call you when it's your turn to vote.
- If you are not able to enter your polling place because the pathway to it is not fully accessible, ask poll workers for curbside assistance.
- If you have difficulty using the materials provided to make your ballot selections, review, or cast your ballot, let a poll worker know and ask for the help you need.
- If you face any challenges in voting privately and independently or are unable to cast your vote, report the problem to the Election Protection Hotline. Trained attorneys can assist you and make sure that other voters do not experience the same problem.

Additional information:

- Find detailed voting guides from the Bazon Center for Mental Health Law at www.bazon.org/our-work/voting.
- For a toolkit on voting with a disability from the Autistic Self Advocacy Network visit www.autisticadvocacy.org/policy/toolkits/voting.
- For accessible trainings on how to exercise your right to vote with a disability by SABE's GoVoter Project visit www.sabeusa.org/govoter.
- A course on polling place accessibility requirements is available at <https://rockymountainada.talentlms.com/catalog/info/id:133>.
- For voting information in American Sign Language, visit www.signvote.org.

Voters who speak English less than “very well”

Your rights:

- Under federal law, voters who have a hard time reading or writing English may receive in-person help at the polls from the person of their choice. This person cannot be the voter's employer, an agent of the voter's employer, or an agent or officer of the voter's union.
- The federal Voting Rights Act contains a number of protections for voters who require language help. In NYC, depending on where you live, language assistance is available in Spanish, Chinese, Korean, and Bengali. All registration or voting notices, forms, instructions, and other information relating to voting, including ballots, must be provided in other languages. Visit <https://ag.ny.gov/civil-rights/voting-rights> or call 866.868.3692 for more information, including which polling sites have interpreters available.

What to do:

- You can bring a family member, friend, or another person of your choice to help you at the polls. Do not bring your employer, or an agent of your employer or union.
- If you live in a county with bilingual voting help for a language you speak, you can request oral help from a bilingual poll worker and ask for voting materials, such as a ballot, in that language.

If someone is interfering with your right to vote

Examples of voter intimidation:

- Aggressively questioning voters about their citizenship, conviction record, or other qualifications to vote.
- Falsely representing oneself as an elections official.
- Displaying false or misleading signs about voter fraud and related criminal penalties.
- Other forms of harassment, particularly harassment targeting non-English speakers and voters of color.
- Spreading false information about voter requirements.

Your rights:

- It's illegal to intimidate voters and a federal crime to "intimidate, threaten, [or] coerce ... any other person for the purpose of interfering with the right of [that] other person to vote or to vote as he may choose."
- You do not need to speak English to vote, in any state. You do not need to pass a test to vote, in any state. In New York, only first time voters need to present photo identification if they did not provide valid identification at the time they registered to vote.

What to do if you experience voter intimidation:

- Report intimidation to your local board of elections. Their offices are open on Election Day.
- In New York, you can give a sworn statement to the poll worker that you satisfy the qualifications to vote in your state, and then proceed to cast a ballot.

Voter Suppression

Voter suppression is any effort, either legal or illegal, by way of laws, administrative rules, and/or tactics that prevent citizens from registering to vote or voting. Examples of voter suppression include, but are not limited to, voter ID laws, voter registration restriction, voter intimidation, felony disenfranchisement, voter purges, polling site closures, and gerrymandering. To learn more about voter suppression visit www.aclu.org/news/civil-liberties/block-the-vote-voter-suppression-in-2020.

Provides information on how to obtain a NYS driver's license. A person of any age who does not have a driver's license can apply for a nondriver's ID card. This card contains the same personal information, photograph, signature, and special protection against alteration and fraud as a photo driver's license. Visit the website to renew registration online, download forms, and find the location of a local center.

NYS UNIFIED COURT SYSTEM—NAME CHANGES

25 Beaver Street, New York, NY 10004

Telephone: 800.268.7869 / TTY: 711

www.nycourts.gov/courts/nyc/civil/namechanges.shtml

Those who live in NYC may bring a name change proceeding in any county in the city. It costs $65 to change a name in civil court. Forms can be found on the civil court's website or one may go to the name change location in each courthouse and get the forms from the court clerk.

Applicants must bring either an original or certified copy of their birth certificate. The papers will be reviewed by the court clerk and submitted to a judge. If approved, the applicant must publish the new name in one or more newspapers, for a fee.

Parents or legal guardians who want to change a child's name need a notarized consent form signed by any other parent or legal guardian of the child. If consent cannot be obtained, the other parent or legal guardian must be given notice of the name change case and come back to the court to see the judge. If an address for the other parent or legal guardian is not known, steps must be taken to locate them. If they cannot be located, the court will consider the name change without their consent. If an applicant wants to change the name of a child who is 14 years of age or older, a notarized consent form must be signed by the child.

Name change requests can be viewed by anyone because they are public records. If the name change needs to be kept private for safety or other reasons, the clerk should be told before the petition is filed. The clerk will provide information on how one can request to seal the records and/or avoid publication of the name change.

Discrimination, Grievances, & Rights

For information on avoiding discrimination while looking for work, see page 362 in The Job Search.

Grievance process while incarcerated

According to the Prison Litigation Reform Act (PLRA), you must “exhaust” (use up) all of the available grievance procedures before you can take your complaint to court.

If you have an issue that cannot be resolved after you have verbally consulted with your Housing Officer, Counselor, or Legal or Grievance Coordinator, you may present a complaint in writing to the Grievance Coordinator in your facility who will guide you through the steps to a formal resolution. You may submit a complaint about things that directly affect you such as department policies, how the policies are carried out, or someone else’s behavior, including an officer.

How to write an effective grievance

When using the Inmate Grievance Process, you should follow several guidelines to increase your chances of obtaining relief (help). First, if you file a formal grievance with a grievance resolution committee, write out your grievance in detail and list exactly what attempts you made to resolve the problem. If you do not try to resolve the problem on your own, your grievance may be dismissed and closed at the grievance committee hearing. Second, your complaint must show that you are personally affected by the policy or issue that you are filing a grievance against. If that is not the case, your complaint must show that you will be affected at some point in the future unless relief is granted and changes are made. Third, you should state the problem accurately and precisely. Using inflammatory language (such as curse words) in your complaint will reduce your chances of success. Fourth, the more specific you are about the relief you are seeking, the more likely you are to receive it. You should list in detail every aspect of relief that you seek because the Inmate Grievance Resolution Committee may not consider types of relief that you do not specifically request. For example, explain the conditions or policies you want changed.

The Jailhouse Lawyer’s Manual (JLM) has an entire chapter on how to file an effective grievance. See the full listing for JLM on page 190.

www.nyc.gov/humanrights

Contact to file a complaint for discrimination in employment, housing, and public accommodations based on age, race, color, religion/creed, natural hair or hairstyles, national origin, immigration or citizenship status, gender (including sexual harassment), gender identity, sexual orientation, disability, veteran or active military service member status, pregnancy, marital status, and partnership status.

In employment, the law affords additional protection against discrimination based on arrest or conviction record; credit history; status as a victim of domestic violence, sexual violence, or stalking; pre-employment marijuana testing; unemployment status; sexual and reproductive health decisions; salary history; and status as a caregiver (for a child or sick family member).

In housing, the law affords additional protections based on lawful source of income (including housing subsidies such as Section 8, and LINC and public assistance programs such as SSD and SSI), lawful occupation, family status (including presence of children), and status as a victim of domestic violence, sexual violence, or stalking.

The law also prohibits retaliation and protects against discriminatory harassment and bias-based profiling by law enforcement.

The law's protection includes discrimination based on an individual's actual status as well as what people think or perceive an individual's status to be. Individuals are also protected based on their association with other individuals who fall into a protected category.

Anyone who has reason to believe that they have been a victim of discrimination in NYC may file a complaint with the Commission. Complaints must be filed within one year of the last incident of alleged discrimination or three years for cases involving gender-based harassment.

Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA)

The PREA information in this book was compiled from several sources, most listed with web addresses in each section, and the ACLU's toolkit found online at www.aclu.org/other/prison-rape-elimination-act-prea-toolkit-end-abuse-protecting-lgbti-prisoners-sexual-assault.

What is PREA?

The Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA) is a federal law passed by Congress in 2003. The intention of PREA is to address the prevention, reduction, and elimination of sexual assault and rape within all jails and prisons, including juvenile facilities and immigration detention centers. In May 2012, the Department of Justice (DOJ) published a comprehensive set of regulations implementing the Act. These regulations are currently in effect.

Do the PREA regulations apply to all prisons and jails?

The PREA regulations apply to prisons, jails, police lock-ups, juvenile detention centers, and community confinement facilities. The regulations apply to the federal government, states, local governments like cities and counties, and private prisons contracted with government agencies. The DOJ PREA regulations do not apply to federal immigration detention facilities or federal Health & Human Services (HHS) facilities. These agencies were directed to promulgate their own PREA regulations.

Safety

No one has the right to force you into a sexual act. You do not have to put up with sexual harassment, sexual abuse, or being forced to have unwanted sexual contact with anyone. If you are being pushed, threatened, or blackmailed into a sex act by someone incarcerated with you, by a peer on parole, or by staff, you should report it. You should also report if anyone tries to retaliate against you because you reported such an incident or spoke to an investigator about sexual abuse.

24-hour support is available for victims of sexual abuse and harassment:

- National Sexual Assault Hotline: 800.656.4673
- NYS Domestic and Sexual Violence Hotline: 800.942.6906
- In NYC: 800.621.4673

Just Detention International (JDI) is an organization dedicated to ending sexual abuse in detention through advocacy, education, and legal measures. If you have been the victim of sexual assault and would like the JDI's Survivor Packet mailed to you, call 213.384.1400 x110. See the full listing for JDI on page 143.

Information on reporting sexual assault and harassment

If you have experienced sexual abuse, voyeurism, or sexual harassment:

- You can file a complaint by telling anyone who works at the facility, including a volunteer, trusted staff member, counselor, medical staff, or PREA Compliance Manager.

- You can tell them verbally or in writing. It's a good idea to keep a copy of any written reports.
- You do not have to tell the person who hurt you that you are reporting the abuse or report the abuse to someone you are afraid of.
- The person you tell is required to tell only those required to begin the investigation, and no one else. They are instructed to keep your complaint confidential, but make sure to tell the individual you trust most.
- You can report the abuse at any time, but the sooner you report it, the sooner it can be investigated and steps can be taken to protect you.
- You can also have someone else report the abuse for you. If you think someone else is being sexually abused or sexually harassed, you should report that too.

When you tell the facility staff about sexual abuse, they must:

- Act immediately by telling a supervisor;
- Begin to investigate promptly;
- Separate you from the person or people who hurt you;
- Let you know the results of the investigation. If the person who hurt you is punished, transferred, or fired, the facility staff must tell you.

When you tell the facility staff that you were sexually abused they cannot:

- Retaliate against you;
- Put you in solitary confinement as a punishment. The facility staff may put you in solitary based on a claim that it is for your protection, and there is paperwork that must be done to prove it. This is called protective custody.

If you have been a victim of sexual abuse:

- Staff may ask you not to shower or not to brush your teeth. They may ask you to do these things to protect evidence, but it is ultimately your choice.
- The facility may place you in protective custody (solitary).
- Medical providers will check you for injuries that you may or may not be able to see right away. They can also provide treatment for sexually transmitted diseases and collect evidence of the sexual abuse. Medical providers will also discuss the possibility of pregnancy.

Confidentiality:

- All records of reports of sexual abuse are confidential under Civil Rights Law § 50-B. The identity of a victim of sexual abuse, the person reporting sexual abuse, any witnesses, and the facts of the report itself are confidential. Information is only shared with the people involved in the reporting, investigation, discipline, and treatment process, or as otherwise required by law.

Prosecution for a false report:

- Law enforcement may charge a person with making a false report if, after investigation, it is proven that the person made the statement knowing it was false or baseless, or the person reported an alleged crime or incident knowing it did not occur. A report made in good faith is not falsely reporting an incident or lying, even if the investigation does not substantiate the allegation.

The following pages list where to report sexual assault and harassment. The investigative agencies listed respond to reports from people incarcerated in state (DOCCS), city (DOC), juvenile (OCFS), federal (BOP), and immigration (ICE) facilities.

To report sexual assault or harassment to an outside agency:

Write to the Consular Official from your home country who is assigned to the United States.

Call the National Sexual Assault Hotline at 800.656.4673.

Call the National Immigration Detention Hotline at 209.757.3733 (from inside detention: 9233).

When you report a sexual abuse or assault incident, the facility and/or an appropriate law enforcement agency will conduct an investigation. You may be asked to participate in an interview to gather information. ICE will inform you of the result of any investigation once it is completed. There is a difference between reporting the incident and choosing to press charges. You may choose not to immediately press charges, but you can always decide to do so later. If criminal charges are filed, they will be presented for possible prosecution. It is important for you to discuss any concerns you have with the prosecutor (or your attorney) or a victim advocate.

You do not have to give your name to report sexual abuse or assault. You can choose to report anonymously. Any report of sexual abuse or fear of being abused or assaulted will not negatively affect your immigration case. The law states that no one can retaliate against you in any way for reporting sexual abuse or assault.

The Department of Homeland Security finalized regulations implementing PREA in 2014. Even with those regulations in place, DHS PREA standards do not protect immigrants in all detention facilities. The regulations are enforced in facilities that have contracts with DHS that are new, renewed, or modified since 2014.

Immigrants

Immigration Law & Enforcement

Immigration laws and policies change frequently. It is important to stay up to date with these changes and to understand your rights. Speak to a lawyer or contact one of the organizations listed in this chapter to find legal support and advice. A criminal court case can have immigration consequences. Talk to your defense lawyer about your immigration status and history. The information you tell your lawyer is confidential, and they have a responsibility to attempt to minimize immigration consequences and advise you about them.

The New York Police Department (NYPD) and the NYC Department of Correction (DOC) are not supposed to cooperate with ICE in transferring people from criminal to immigration custody or notify ICE of their release from criminal custody, with very few exceptions. However, fingerprints taken by the NYPD at the time of arrest are automatically shared with ICE, which can put someone at risk of enforcement in their home and community.

Law enforcement agencies, including ICE, use social media and digital technologies to surveil people. As surveillance technology continues to grow it is important to be aware of its impact on immigration enforcement. Visit www.notechforice.com/resources for reports such as, Who's Behind ICE? The Tech Companies Fueling Deportations and ICE Digital Prisons: The Expansion of Mass Surveillance as ICE's Alternative to Detention, to learn more. For more information about digital policing and resources for online privacy, including information about location cell phone data, see page 174.

Who is at Risk From ICE

The federal government can deport certain immigrants including

- Anyone without lawful immigration status.
- People with status (e.g., lawful permanent residents, refugees, and visa holders) who have certain criminal convictions.

ICE prioritizes certain cases including

- People who ICE claims pose a “threat to national security,”
- People who unlawfully entered the US on or after November 1, 2020, or
- People who ICE claims pose a “threat to public safety” and have an aggravated felony, or a wide range of convictions that are not necessarily a felony under criminal law, or people who ICE believes have participated in a gang.

You could still be a target even if

- Your conviction is from years ago.
- You didn’t serve time in jail or prison.
- Your case was minor or a misdemeanor.
- You’ve been a lawful permanent resident for a long time.
- All the other members of your family are US citizens.

Common ICE tactics

- ICE agents may pose as police officers and misrepresent themselves to get consent to enter your home. They might say they want to talk to you about identity theft or an ongoing police investigation.
- They might be wearing plain clothes, or they might wear a vest with the words “POLICE ICE” written on the back.
- ICE agents might present a document that says “warrant,” but that may not be a valid warrant signed by a judge. Learn to recognize the difference. A valid warrant will have the name of a state or federal court at the top and will have a judge’s signature at the bottom. It will also list your address or name a person who lives at your address.
- Visit www.immigrantdefenseproject.org/ice-ruses for more information on tactics ICE use.

Know Your Rights

All immigrants, regardless of immigration status, have rights under the constitution. It is important to learn about these rights and how to best prepare for an encounter with immigration enforcement. The following is not intended as legal advice. Find more information and resources about your rights, online at www.

immigrantdefenseproject.org, www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/immigrants-rights, and www.informedimmigrant.com.

To report ICE raids in New York City, call the Immigrant Defense Project at 212.752.6422.

In any interaction with ICE agents, whether in public, at your home, or in a courthouse, you have the right to remain silent. This means you do not have to answer questions about your immigration status, your country of origin, where you were born, or any questions ICE might have about a person they are looking for. You can affirm this right by saying “I am choosing to remain silent.”

To reduce risk to yourself, do not lie about your status, do not run, argue, or physically resist. Do not carry any documents from your country of origin or any false documents. (More information on how to obtain a free NYC ID card is on page 206.)

If you are asked about your immigration status by law enforcement

- Remain silent. Do not say anything except “I am choosing to remain silent.”
- Do not answer questions about where you were born, whether you are a US citizen, or how you entered the country. (Separate rules apply at international borders and airports and for individuals on certain nonimmigrant visas, including tourists and business travelers.)
- If you are not a US citizen and you have valid immigration papers, you should show them if an immigration agent requests to see them.
- Do not lie or provide fake documents and do not give any foreign documents.

If you are approached by ICE in public places

- Try to stay calm and use your right to remain silent. Do not answer any questions about your immigration status or where you were born.
- Ask “Am I free to go?” If they say “Yes,” calmly walk away.
- If the officers answer “No,” you are now being detained. Do not run away.
- If ICE arrests you, ask to speak to a lawyer and affirm your right to remain silent.

- You have the right to refuse a search. If ICE starts to search inside your pockets or belongings, say “I do not consent to a search.”
- If ICE arrests you when you are in criminal court for a court date, ask to speak to your defense lawyer before they take you away.

If ICE comes to your home

- Do not open the door.
- ICE is only allowed to enter if they have a valid judicial search warrant or arrest warrant with your correct name and/or address, signed by a judge.
- A warrant is only valid if it is signed by a judge (not an immigration official), it has the address of the home to be searched, and it describes the area to be searched.
- Ask them to slip the warrant under the door for you to look at. If they give you a warrant of removal/deportation, you do not have to let them inside.

If ICE has a valid warrant or enters your home without permission

- Call a lawyer right away.
- Remain silent. Do not say anything except “I have the right to remain silent.”
- Do not sign any papers. You do not have to sign anything without your lawyer there.
- Record or note all the details of the incident including badge numbers, agency, and full names. If you are using a phone or camera and are asked to stop, do so to reduce risk to yourself, and try to remember everything to write down immediately after.

If ICE arrests or detains you

- Remain silent. Anything you say can be used against you in court.
- You have the right to a lawyer, but the government will not provide one. Call the New Americans Hotline at 800.566.7636 to find options for legal counsel. Many other organizations listed in this chapter also provide access to legal services.
- You have the right to contact your consulate or have an officer inform the consulate of your arrest.
- Do not discuss your immigration status with anyone but your lawyer.

- Do not sign anything, such as a voluntary departure document or stipulated removal document, without talking to a lawyer. If you sign, you may be giving up your opportunity to try to stay in the US.
- Memorize your immigration number (“A” number) and give it to your family. It will help them locate you.

If you feel your rights have been violated

- Write down everything you remember, including the officer’s badge and patrol car numbers, which agency the officers were from, and any other details. Get contact information from any witnesses. If you are injured, seek medical attention immediately and take photographs of your injuries.
- Contact an Immigrant Rights organization with the information you have recorded.
- File a written complaint about ICE employee misconduct with the ICE Office of Professional Responsibility (OPR) at www.ice.gov/leadership/opr, 877.246.8253, or ICE Office of Professional Responsibility, PO Box 14475, Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20044.

Locating a loved one who has been detained

- Use the USCIS Online Detainee Locator System to find a person currently in ICE custody, or who was released from ICE custody for any reason within the last 60 days at <https://locator.ice.gov/odls/homePage.do>.

Immigration fraud warning

- Beware of Notario Público Fraud. In many Spanish speaking countries, a Notario Público is an attorney. In the United States, they are not (although attorneys may offer Notary Public services). Notaries Public may certify your identity and signatures (and charge a small fee), but they may not represent you before USCIS, in immigration court, or give you legal advice.
- If you are a victim of immigration fraud, call the New Americans Hotline at 800.566.7636.

Emergency Planning

For those facing possible deportation or detention due to immigration status, it is important to have an emergency plan. The Immigrant Defense Project provides resources at www.immigrantdefenseproject.org/emergency-preparednes.

Some steps that can be taken

- Carry a Know Your Rights card to show to ICE if they stop you.
- Organize important documents including all personal, immigration, and criminal court documents. Create copies and keep these documents safe. Do not give them to ICE.
- Meet with a lawyer as soon as possible to see if you qualify for any legal defenses against deportation (“relief”).
- Plan for medical needs. Write down and carry important medical information with you, including contact information for your doctors and the name and dosage of medications you take.
- Memorize important phone numbers including family members and an immigration/criminal attorney.
- Make arrangements for your children or other loved ones. The Immigrant Legal Resource Center provides an information packet for families to create a Family Preparedness Plan found at www.ilrc.org/step-step-family-preparedness-plan.

Veteran Benefits & Incarceration

The US Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) can pay certain benefits to veterans who are incarcerated in a federal, state, or local penal institution; however, the amount paid depends on the type of benefit and reason for incarceration. For more information, visit www.benefits.va.gov/persona/veteran-incarcerated.asp. It is important to speak directly with a VA representative to figure out what specifically applies to your situation.

Disability compensation

Payments are reduced if a veteran is convicted of a felony and imprisoned for more than 60 days. The VA makes determinations about the severity of a disability based on the evidence submitted as part of a claim and rates disability from 0% to 100%, in 10% increments. Veterans rated 20% or more are limited to the 10% disability rate. For a veteran whose disability rating is 10%, the payment is reduced by one-half. Once a veteran is released from prison, compensation payments may be reinstated based upon the severity of the service connected disability(ies) at that time. Payments are not reduced for recipients participating in work release programs, residing in halfway houses (also known as “residential reentry centers”), or under community supervision. The amount of any increased compensation awarded to an incarcerated veteran that results from other than a statutory rate increase may be subject to reduction due to incarceration. Compensation benefits are not reduced if incarcerated for a misdemeanor.

Pension

If you are incarcerated as the result of a conviction of a felony or misdemeanor, your pension payment will be discontinued effective on the 61st day of imprisonment following conviction. Payments may be resumed upon release from prison if the Veteran meets VA eligibility requirements. Failure to notify the VA of a veteran’s incarceration could result in the loss of all financial benefits until the overpayment is recovered.

Education benefits

Beneficiaries incarcerated for charges other than a felony can receive full monthly benefits if otherwise entitled. Those convicted of felonies residing in halfway houses, or participating in work-release programs also can receive full monthly benefits. Claimants incarcerated for a felony conviction can be paid only the costs of tuition, fees, necessary books, equipment, and supplies.

Apportionment to spouse or children

All or part of the compensation not paid to an incarcerated veteran may be apportioned to the veteran's spouse, child or children, and dependent parents on the basis of individual need. An apportionment of an incarcerated veteran's VA benefits is not granted automatically to the veteran's dependents. The dependent(s) must file a claim for an apportionment.

Are you eligible for VA medical care while incarcerated?

Incarcerated veterans do not forfeit their eligibility for medical care; however, current regulations restrict the VA from providing hospital and outpatient care to a currently incarcerated veteran. The VA may provide care once the veteran has been unconditionally released from the penal institution.

When will VA benefits be resumed?

Veterans may inform the VA to have their benefits resumed within 30 days or less of their anticipated release date based on evidence from a parole board or other official prison source showing the veteran's scheduled release date. Your award for compensation or pension benefits shall be resumed the date of release from incarceration if the VA receives notice of release within one year following release. Depending on the type of disability, the VA may schedule you for a medical examination to see if your disability has improved. You will need to visit or call your local VA regional office for assistance. You are considered to have been released from incarceration if you are paroled or participating in a work-release or halfway housing program.

STATESIDE LEGAL

www.va.gov

Provides near-comprehensive healthcare services to eligible military veterans at VA medical centers and outpatient clinics located throughout the country along with several non-healthcare benefits including disability compensation, vocational rehabilitation, education assistance, home loans, and life insurance. Contact for more information, forms, how to request military records (including DD214), and instructions for applying for benefits.

The Veteran Rapid Retraining Assistance Program (VRRAP) is for veterans who lost their job due to COVID-19. Eligible participants receive up to 12 months of tuition and fees and a monthly housing allowance based on Post-9/11 GI Bill rates. Covered education programs must provide training for high-demand occupations, which is determined by the Commissioner of Labor Statistics. GI Bill approved programs of education, excluding bachelor's and graduate degrees, and VET TEC approved training are eligible.

The Healthcare for Re-entry Veterans (HCRV) program provides services including outreach and pre-release assessment services and referrals and linkages to medical, mental health, and social services, including employment services on release and short-term case management assistance on release.

The Veterans Justice Outreach (VJO) program for court-involved and incarcerated people provides help with access to Veterans Health Administration (VHA) services, as clinically indicated. Specialists provide direct outreach, assessment and case management for court-involved veterans in local courts and jails, and liaison with local criminal legal system partners. Does not offer legal services.

Homeless Outreach Coordinators assist court-involved veterans to learn more about benefits and qualifications, applying for benefits, and referrals to other organizations and resources. Call the National Call Center for Homeless Veterans to be connected with a homeless coordinator in your area.

Local Veterans Centers, listed below, have therapists and clinicians that provide a broad range of counseling and referral services to eligible veterans and their families. Provides counseling for combat-related trauma, counseling for those who have been sexually traumatized in the military, and bereavement counseling. Eligibility determined upon intake by one's DD214. Rights While Incarcerated

The following is from the ADA National Network's fact sheet found online at www.adata.org/factsheet/corrections.

The Department of Justice issued revised Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) Title II regulations which took effect March 15, 2011. These regulations require adult and juvenile jails and prisons (including private prisons) to make accessible benefits, services, programs, and activities to any incarcerated person with a disability. The law requires that qualified people with disabilities should have access to all programs to which they would otherwise be entitled, including educational, vocational, work release, employment, and religious programs, whether mandatory or voluntary.

People with disabilities must be housed in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of the individuals. This means there needs to be accessible housing in all security classifications and/or program levels of a facility. Unless it is appropriate to make an exception, jails and prisons shall not place people with disabilities:

- In inappropriate security classifications because no accessible cells or beds are available
- In medical areas, unless they are actually receiving medical care or treatment
- In facilities that do not offer the same programs as facilities where they otherwise would be housed

- In distant facilities where they would otherwise not be housed that would deprive them of visitation with family members

Facilities should provide accessible mobility features to cells such as an accessible route to and through the room, an entry door with adequate clear width, maneuvering clearance, and accessible hardware. Altered cells with mobility features shall be provided in each classification level.

People should have equal physical access to areas used for visitation, dining, recreation, educational programs, medical services, work programs, religious services, and other offered programs. If it is technically infeasible to house someone in an area that meets these standards, a transfer within the same prison system must be provided.

If your rights have been violated, see page 207 for information on filing a grievance.

ACLU—REPRODUCTIVE FREEDOM PROJECT

125 Broad Street, 18th Floor, New York, NY 10004

www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/prisoners-rights/#im-pregnant-and-in-prison

The Reproductive Freedom Project advocates for pregnant people who are incarcerated to receive reproductive health services. Write for a Know Your Rights fact sheet. If you are pregnant, being in prison or jail does not mean you lose your right to decide whether to continue your pregnancy or have an abortion.

 Your rights:

- You have the right to an abortion if you want one, and to refuse an abortion if you do not want one.
- You have the right to prenatal and other medical care for your pregnancy, and postpartum care.
- You cannot be forced to pay before you can get the medical care you need.
- You have the right to refuse sterilization or other unwanted birth control after your pregnancy.

What to do if you think your rights have been violated:

- If you are not getting the medical care you need, ask other medical staff to help you.
- Document everything that happens. Put your request for an abortion or other medical care in writing and keep a copy. Also, keep a list of the people who you've spoken to or contacted and write down what they say and the dates and times you spoke to them.
- In addition to your request for medical care, you should also file a grievance (an official complaint) if your medical needs are not met.
- If your grievance is denied or rejected, file an appeal and pay attention to all the rules and deadlines of the grievance system, which are usually written in the inmate handbook. For more information on filing a grievance, please see page 207.

If you are not being provided the medical care you need, contact your lawyer or the ACLU.

Protections Against Discrimination

Under the NYC Human Rights Law, it is illegal to discriminate based on actual or perceived sexual orientation or gender. Discrimination because of gender includes discrimination based on gender identity or expression, or being intersex. These protections cover discrimination in many places including work, school, housing, and public spaces. The law also protects NYC's LGBTQI+ communities against retaliation, discriminatory harassment, and bias-based profiling by law enforcement.

Visit www1.nyc.gov/site/cchr/media/pride.page for information on how to identify discrimination; myth, facts, and common misconceptions on gender identity and gender expression protections; brochures on protections against discrimination based on sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression; a resource portal on equal bathroom access; and legal guidance.

Lambda Legal (full listing on page 183) also provides Know Your Rights resources on their website at www.lambdalegal.org/know-your-rights including rights in court, a legal guide for transgender people and their advocates, a section for LGBTQI+ teens and young adults, and more.

What To Do If You're Discriminated Against

If you have experienced discrimination, contact the NYC Commission on Human Rights at 212.416.0197 or use the online form at www1.nyc.gov/site/cchr/about/report-discrimination.page to report your case. You are able to report anonymously and are never asked about immigration status.

Rights During Police Interactions

- The police are not allowed to make transphobic or homophobic remarks or discriminate against you based on actual or perceived gender identity or sexual orientation.
- You have the right to be referred to by names, titles, and pronouns that reflect your gender identity, even if it doesn't match the information on your ID.

- It is illegal for police to frisk or search you to determine your gender.
- If you are in police custody, you should be searched by an officer of the gender you request. You should also be held in sex segregated police facilities according to your gender identity, even if it differs from the sex you were assigned at birth, unless there is a concern for your safety.
- If you are concerned for your safety, you should ask to be treated as a “special category prisoner” and held in a cell by yourself. The police cannot handcuff you to rails, bars, or chairs for unreasonable periods of time because you asked to be treated as a “special category prisoner.”

For more information on rights during police interactions, see page 167.

Healthcare

In NYC, it is illegal to discriminate on the basis of a person’s sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression in public accommodations, including healthcare settings. The NYC Health website, available at www1.nyc.gov/site/doh/health/health-topics/lgbtq.page, provides information on the Health Care Bill of Rights and more resources.

If you believe you have been mistreated or denied care because of your sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression, you can file a complaint with the NYC Commission on Human Rights by calling 212.416.0197 or use the online form at www1.nyc.gov/site/cchr/about/report-discrimination.page.

The NYC Health Map is a directory of LGBTQI+ knowledgeable providers offering services in primary care, sexual health care, gender affirming care, HIV testing, treatment, and other services. Information can be searched for at <https://a816-healthpsi.nyc.gov/NYHealthMap> or by calling 311.

The website provides resources and tools, including an insurance tutorial. Visit the website for more information on eligibility and intake form.

Rights for Incarcerated Transgender, Intersex, & Gender Nonconforming People

In 2018 the Bureau of Prisons (BOP) rolled back policies intended to protect transgender people, and at the time of publication for this book the policy had not been changed. According to the BOP's "Transgender Offender Manual," prison staff are directed to use an incarcerated person's sex assigned at birth as the determination for housing, rather than their gender. Additionally, the Prison Litigation Reform Act (PLRA) states that you must fully go through the grievance process at your facility before taking a case to court. For more information on filing a grievance, please see page 207.

The following is from the ACLU's Know Your Rights fact sheet for incarcerated transgender people, available at www.aclu.org/know-your-rights/prisoners-rights/#im-experiencing-discrimination-or-abuse-in-prison-because-im-transgender.

Or reach out to:

ACLU National Prison Project
915 15th Street NW, 7th Floor
Washington, DC 20005
Telephone: 212.549.2500

PREA Standards require prisons and jails to make individualized housing and program placements for all transgender and intersex people, including when assigning them to male or female facilities. Many correctional facilities house transgender people in solitary confinement to protect them from violence. PREA says you cannot be segregated against your will for more than 30 days and if you are in protective custody you must have access to programs, privileges, and education and work opportunities to the extent possible.

Staff must evaluate you for gender dysphoria within a reasonable time if you request it. Medical treatment for incarcerated people diagnosed with gender dysphoria should be delivered according to accepted medical standards. Additionally, blanket bans on specific types of treatments, such as a ban on hormone therapy or gender confirmation surgery, are unconstitutional.

Staff should generally allow you gender-appropriate clothing and grooming supplies, and allow you to present yourself in a manner consistent with your gender identity, or they may be in violation of the Eighth Amendment.

Strip searches must be conducted professionally and respectfully. A strip search conducted in full view of other people and staff may violate your privacy rights. If there is no emergency, male staff should not strip search women (including transgender women) and vice versa. Some jails have policies allowing transgender people to choose the gender of the staff who search them. Staff cannot conduct strip and pat down searches solely to assess your genitals. Staff must be trained to conduct searches of transgender and intersex people in a professional and respectful manner, and in the least intrusive manner possible, consistent with security needs. If you request a private shower, PREA requires that officials grant you access.

Information on your legal rights

Get a copy of your prison's or jail's appeal policy. Always follow the policy exactly. Remember that PLRA only applies to cases that are brought by an incarcerated person. This means that your case will not be controlled by most of the PLRA provisions if you file it after your release. Because other legal deadlines may apply, though, you should always try to get legal advice before you make any decisions about when or how to file a lawsuit about something that happened to you in prison or jail.

Keep track of everything that happened to you—the names of officers, other incarcerated people, where and when things happened, which policies are available, and which are not available, etc. Even if you never bring a case to court, having details about what happened can be very important if you reach out to other people for help. If you are afraid that staff might take your paperwork, send copies to people you trust on the outside. Be aware, though, that if you are not sending information by legal mail to an attorney or legal organization, staff will likely read everything you put in letters or envelopes.

For organizations that specialize in helping transgender people and other LGBTQI+ people, please consider reaching out to the National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR), the Transgender Law Center (TLC), and the Sylvia Rivera Law Project listed in this chapter.

Raise the Age

In 2017, Raise the Age legislation was signed into law. The legislation raises the age of adult criminal responsibility in the State of New York to the age of 18 for most charges. The changes went into effect for 16-year-olds on 10/1/18 and for 17-year-olds on 10/1/19. This information can be found at www.ny.gov/programs/raise-age-0.

Parental notification

- Parents must be notified when their children are arrested.
- Questioning of youth must take place in age-appropriate settings, with parental involvement, and for appropriate lengths of time.

Misdemeanors

- All misdemeanor cases (other than Vehicle and Traffic Law misdemeanors) will be heard in Family Court pursuant to the Family Court Act.

Felonies

- All felony cases will start in the Youth Part of the adult criminal court.
- All nonviolent felonies will be transferred from the Youth Part to Family Court unless the District Attorney (DA) files a motion within 30 days showing “extraordinary circumstances” as to why the case should remain in the Youth Part. The Judge must decide within five days whether to prevent the transfer of the case to Family Court.
- Violent felonies can also be transferred from the Youth Part to the Family Court. If the charges do not include the accused displaying a deadly weapon in furtherance of the offense, causing significant physical injury, or engaging in unlawful sexual conduct, the case will transfer to Family Court unless the DA files a motion within 30 days showing “extraordinary circumstances.” If the charge does include an element listed above, removal to Family Court is only possible with the consent of the DA. Vehicle and Traffic Law cases and Class A felonies other than Class A drug offenses cannot be transferred.
- 16- and 17-year-olds whose cases remain in the Youth Part will be referred to as “Adolescent Offenders.” Adult sentencing will apply, but the judge must take the youth’s age into account when sentencing. Adolescent Offenders are eligible for Youthful Offender treatment, as is the current law with respect to 16- and 17-year-olds charged as adults.

- Adolescent Offenders may voluntarily participate in services while their case is pending.

Family Court

- Youth whose cases are heard in the Family Court will be processed pursuant to existing Juvenile Delinquency (JD) laws, which includes the opportunity for adjustment. They will not have a permanent criminal record.

Youth Part of Adult Court

- The Youth Part is a special branch of the adult criminal court presided over by Family Court judges. All 13–15-year-old Juvenile Offenders and all 16–17-year-old Adolescent Offenders will have their cases in the Youth Part.

Facilities

- No 16- or 17-year-old will be sentenced to or detained in a facility with adults, as of October 1, 2018.
- Youth whose cases are heard in Family Court may be detained or placed in OCFS-operated, OCFS-licensed, or ACS facilities (including Close to Home), as Juvenile Delinquents currently are.
- Adolescent Offenders who are detained pretrial will be held in a specialized secure juvenile detention center for older youth, regulated by OCFS and the state commission of correction. Judges have the discretion to order that Adolescent Offenders sentenced to less than a year serve such sentences in a specialized juvenile detention center for older youth.
- Adolescent Offenders who are sentenced to state imprisonment will be placed in an Adolescent Offender facility operated jointly by DOCCS and OFCS.

Custody Rights for Incarcerated Parents

The Administration for Children's Services (ACS) is a New York City agency with the stated purpose of protecting children and with the power to remove children from their parents in cases of abuse or neglect.

Incarcerated parents are at a much higher risk of being investigated by ACS, so every incarcerated parent should understand how ACS's process for supervising and removing children works, and what they can do to prevent that from happening.

Find out if there's an ACS case involving your children

- Contact a lawyer for help finding out if there is a Family Court case involving your family.
- If you have a case, contact Family Court and ask to have a lawyer assigned to represent you.
- Contact ACS directly to find out the status of your case, to propose a family member or friend who could care for your children, to ask for a service plan, or to ask for visits with your children.
- Be careful what information you provide ACS since anything you say can be used against you. If you can, talk with a lawyer before speaking with ACS.

Make a plan with family members or friends who can care for your children

- Give their names and contact information to your lawyer and the ACS caseworkers.
- Your lawyer can fight for your children to live with a family member or friend instead of being placed with strangers. This will help keep ACS from getting involved in the first place and will give you better options during the process if ACS does get involved.

Maintaining contact with your children is important

- You have to show you are staying involved in your children's lives to help keep your rights as a parent.
- You should stay in touch with your children however you can, including visits, phone calls, videos, photos, letters, cards, etc.—as long as there is no court order prohibiting contact with your children.

- The Children of Incarcerated Parents Program (CHIPP) may be able to help bring your children to see you regularly: 212.341.3322
- Osborne Association offers televisiting for some facilities: 718.637.6560

Stay in touch with ACS and keep records of everything

- Keeping a written record of any visits with your children may help you prove your case in court. Get written proof of any services you attend, communication with ACS or the foster care agency, and any child support payments you make.
- The foster care agency has to prove they worked with you to set up visits with your children, so make sure you keep a record of any time you contacted the agency or ACS to set up a visit.

Be careful about what you say to ACS and the Foster Care Agency

- Do not discuss any aspect of your legal case with ACS or Foster Care Agency caseworkers without speaking with your lawyer first.
- Get professional help when dealing with ACS (like a public defender, hired lawyer, or nonprofit agency).
- Do not say anything regarding your mental health, criminal case, substance use, or domestic violence—these statements are admissions that could be used against you in court.

You have the right to make educational and medical decisions for your children

- Even if your children are in foster care, you have the right to make medical and educational decisions for your children. (As long as your parental rights have not been terminated.)
- Contact your children's schools and medical offices and ask them to send you updates on educational conferences or medical appointments, and the well-being and performance of your children.

You have the right to be present at any court date involving your children

- This is called “being produced.”
- Contact Family Court and ACS to find out about any upcoming court dates.
- Send a request to Family Court for an order to be produced.
- State prisons will usually transport you to court.
- Federal prisons will usually set you up on a phone or video call.
- Get help from legal advocates to set this up.

LEGAL INFORMATION FOR FAMILIES TODAY (LIFT)

32 Court Street, Suite 1208, Brooklyn, NY 11201 Family Law Helpline: 212.343.1122 www.liftonline.org

A nonprofit organization that provides free legal information and advice about NYS family law and Family Court, including issues of child support, custody, and visitation. Visit the website to access multilingual legal resource guides on topics including child support, custody, visitation, how to start a court case, and more. Accepts collect calls and requests for information by mail from incarcerated parents. Does not provide full legal representation. Call the helpline for information and to connect to programs.

Child Support

Anyone who has a child support order is obligated to pay child support, even those who are currently incarcerated. Child support orders are based on the information available at the time of the hearing. Unpaid child support adds up and becomes debt called arrears. Arrears never go away, even after your child turns 21.

Either parent has the right to file a petition in Family Court to modify (change) the amount of the child support order if there is a substantial change in circumstances or the needs of the child are not being met. You can find the address for each borough’s Family Court on page 328.

In New York State, child support orders prior to October 13, 2010 treat incarceration as “voluntary unemployment” and typically may not be modified. For orders issued on or after October 13, 2010, incarcerated parents may file a modification petition due to a substantial change in circumstances, as long as their incarceration is not due to non-payment of child support, or an offense against the custodial parent or child.

The determination of whether a court will agree to a child support modification during a parent’s incarceration is the judge’s decision. Only a judge can change or modify a child support order. A court may decide that the child support payments should remain the same during a parent’s incarceration.

Legal Information for Families Today (LIFT) created a guide, Family Court Basics for Parents Who Were Previously Incarcerated, available at www.liftonline.org, in English and Spanish. The guide answers questions that formerly incarcerated parents may have about paternity, child support, custody, and visitation.

Look up Child Support in the index to find more organizations that offer help navigating child support.

Preparing for the Job Search

What You Can Do Before Leaving Prison

Take advantage of programs in your facility

Take advantage of programs and services at your facility, as they may help you prepare for release. You can ask your facility to invite people from community agencies or private companies that do a large amount of hiring. You can start reaching out to organizations that provide services to people to help them prepare for release.

If you plan to live in New York City after your release, you may want a copy of this book for yourself. You can receive a free copy of Connections by writing to Jail & Prison Services, The New York Public Library, 40 West 20th Street, New York, NY 10011.

If you are not returning to New York City, please see reentry guidebooks for other parts of New York State starting on page 41 and Reentry Task Forces by county starting on page 42.

Gather the documents that you will need

To apply for jobs and to be eligible for most private or government programs, you will need certain types of documentation. You can save time if you begin to collect documentation while you are still incarcerated. At the very least, be sure to have a Social Security card (sometimes a number alone is not sufficient) and proof of identification (birth certificate, driver's license, or nondriver photo ID). Each agency or employer has its own requirements for documentation.

The following may be useful to have when you are released:

- Prison discharge papers (given to you upon release)
- Military discharge papers (DD214), more information found on page 244
- Permanent Resident Card (green card, for non-US citizens), more information found on page 229
- Proof of education (college transcripts or HSE certificate), more information found on page 64
- Working papers (required for people under 18 years of age), more information found on page 311

- Certificate of Relief from Disabilities or Certificate of Good Conduct (apply after release)

You can request a copy of your rap sheet to review and make sure there are no errors. See page 359 for more information.

If you were vaccinated while incarcerated, make sure you are given your vaccination card upon release. For more information on replacing COVID-19 vaccination cards see page 29.

These documents may not be easy to get while you are incarcerated. In some cases, a family member or friend on the outside can help. Ask your contact in the community to visit <https://portal.311.nyc.gov/category/?id=311-15> for information on how to obtain important documents including birth certificates, naturalization cards, driver's licenses, and nondriver IDs.

Personal and professional references may be required to apply for jobs, to get back into school, and to receive the certificates discussed below. Letters from people who will speak positively on your behalf about your skills, abilities, work history, and motivation can make a difference when applying for jobs. People you can ask include a former supervisor, a teacher, a mentor, or a religious or spiritual advisor. Usually, family and friends do not serve as references. Start a file or folder for these letters and keep them together so you have them all in one place when you need them.

What You Can Do Upon Release

Restore your rights

Depending on the conviction, you may have lost your right to engage in certain types of employment or apply for certain types of licenses. In some cases, you may be legally prohibited from applying for certain civil service positions that are classified as public office, such as firefighters. Visit <https://niccc.csgjusticecenter.org> to search for restrictions on professional licenses. John Jay College Institute for Justice and Opportunity has published a guide explaining the process for obtaining licenses in 25 high demand occupations and professions called

Getting to Work With a Criminal Record: New York State License Guide, available at www.justiceandopportunity.org/research/getting-to-work-with-a-criminal-record-new-york-state-license-guides-2020-expanded-edition.

To restore your rights, you need:

- a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities, for those who have been convicted of only misdemeanors and not more than one felony, or one felony only
- a Certificate of Good Conduct, for those who have been convicted of more than one felony

Information about certificates

Certificates are an assumption of rehabilitation and evidence that employers and licensing agencies must consider when licensing or hiring. Certificate of Relief from Disabilities is a confusing name. Having a felony conviction and having a disability are in no way the same thing. Your parole officer may simply refer to this certificate as a Certificate of Relief.

What certificates can do

Certificates have the power to remove any legal bar imposed on you as a result of having been convicted of the crime(s) specified on the certificate. If you have a certificate, not only do you become eligible to apply for positions you might otherwise be barred from, but the certificate informs the employer that the state or a court assumes you are rehabilitated and that the employer should take this into consideration. A certificate is not a pardon, and an employer is still allowed to conduct a background check after offering you a job.

Remember that some occupational licenses may be denied to you for certain employment unless you have one of the certificates.

To learn about defending yourself against job discrimination, see page 362.

Applying for a certificate

For Certificates of Relief from Disabilities, you must apply to the court that sentenced you, unless:

- you were sentenced to a New York State (DOCCS) correctional facility, or

- you were convicted in a federal court or a court in another state and you are now a resident of New York State.

Certificates in these cases are issued by the New York State Department of Corrections and Community Supervision (DOCCS). After release, there is no waiting time to apply for this certificate.

To apply for a Certificate of Good Conduct, which is granted to persons who have multiple felony convictions, you may have to wait three to five years after completing your most recent sentence, depending on the severity of your most serious conviction. For example, you may have two felonies, a class-E felony from 1995 and a class-B felony from 2005, and you were discharged from parole in 2017. Since your most serious crime was a B felony, you would have to wait five years from the completion of your most recent sentence (2017). Therefore, you would be eligible to apply for a Certificate of Good Conduct in 2022.

To request an application form for a Certificate of Relief from Disabilities if you have served time in a DOCCS facility, or were convicted out of state or in federal court, or to request an application for a Certificate of Good Conduct, write to:

NYS DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS AND COMMUNITY SUPERVISION (DOCCS)

Attn: Certificate Review Unit

Harriman State Campus—Building 2

1220 Washington Avenue, Albany, NY 12226

Application forms are also available at the New York State Department of Corrections and Community Supervision website at <https://doccs.ny.gov/certificate-relief-good-conduct-restoration-rights> or by calling 518.485.8953.

What to expect

Once you submit the completed application, DOCCS will assign a field Parole Officer for an investigation (this does not mean that you are being placed on parole). The Officer will review:

- Employment history and how you have supported yourself
- Proof that you have paid income taxes for the last two years
- Proof that you have paid any fines or restitution set by the courts

After DOCCS has received all necessary documents and records from you, the field Parole Officer assigned to you will contact you to arrange an interview at your home/residence to answer any remaining questions and confirm your current circumstances and living situation.

Even though the application does not say you must include evidence of rehabilitation in your application packet, it may be helpful to do so. Things that you may want to provide are:

- A written personal statement, about the positive changes you have made since your conviction
- Copies of certificates from programs you've attended such as job training
- Letters of support from employers, counselors, supervisors, teachers, and others
- Copies of school transcripts

Remember, even if your convictions took place outside of New York State, or in a federal court, you may apply directly upon release from custody to the Certificate Review Unit.

For more information, contact your parole/probation officer, or the Legal Action Center, 225 Varick Street, New York, NY 10014, telephone: 212.243.1313. You can also visit www.reentry.net/ny and click on Criminal Records for applications and other information. Certificates generally take one year to be processed.

Clean up your rap sheet (Record of Arrest and Prosecution)

Often, arrests that should be sealed (arrests not leading to convictions, youthful offender adjudications, or convictions for noncriminal offenses) remain open or unsealed on your record and available for potential employers to see.

A study, published in 2013 by the Legal Action Center, found at least 30% of arrest and prosecution records contained at least one error, and some contained as many as 10 or more.

Employers who can legally fingerprint you and get a copy of your rap sheet from New York State include: civil service employers, banks and financial institutions, bonding agencies, hospitals, museums, childcare agencies, home care agencies, mental health facilities, school bus driving companies, security-guard companies, and law enforcement agencies (who are entitled to see sealed information as well). It is to your advantage to clean up your record, and to have corrected or sealed whatever errors or unnecessary information may appear on it.

Reviewing your rap sheet

If you are currently serving a sentence in a New York State prison or in a county or city jail, you can receive a copy of your rap sheet free of charge. You must include your name, any aliases, your date of birth, your DIN, and your projected release date. The Division of Criminal Justice Services will not send you your rap sheet if you will be incarcerated for less than 45 days. Send your request to:

NYS CRIMINAL JUSTICE SERVICES, LEGAL SERVICES OFFICE

Record Review Unit

Alfred E. Smith Building

80 South Swan Street, Albany, NY 12210

Telephone: 518.457.5837

www.criminaljustice.ny.gov

The Legal Action Center or the Public Defender's Office in your borough can also assist you in obtaining your rap sheet.

The Legal Action Center has a useful booklet called Your New York State Rap Sheet: A Guide to Getting, Understanding, and Correcting Your Criminal Record. The guide is available online at www.lac.org/resource/employment-with-a-criminal-record, or you can request a copy by contacting them by phone at 212.243.1313 or writing to 225 Varick Street, New York, NY 10014.

To obtain a federal rap sheet, known as an Identity History Summary, you must fill out an application with the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) found at <https://forms.fbi.gov/identity-history-summary-checks-review> and send: (1) the completed application; (2) a full set of fingerprints on a standard fingerprint form, FD-258 (available at any police precinct for a fee) with the date, your name, and your date and place of birth; and (3) a money order or certified check for $18 made payable to the Treasury of the United States to: FBI CJIS Division—Summary Request, 1000 Custer Hollow Road, Clarksburg, WV 26306.

A complete list of instructions can be found at www.fbi.gov/services/cjis/identity-history-summary-checks.

Many employers are not authorized to get a copy of your rap sheet directly from the Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS). Prospective employers may conduct a background check using a consumer-reporting agency. Federal and New York State fair credit reporting laws require that an employer get your permission before conducting a background check. You should get a copy of your consumer credit report for yourself as you prepare to look for a job. These reports are often incomplete or inaccurate and you may need to spend some time correcting the information. You can obtain one free credit report per year by calling 877.322.8228 or visit www.annualcreditreport.com. You can also write to Annual Credit Report Request Service, PO Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348 for more information. A Social Security number is needed to obtain your free credit report.

An employer or individual may also get a copy of your conviction history from the Office of Court Administration (OCA). This is the agency that keeps all court information on file. An OCA background check costs $95. Visit www.nycourts.gov/apps/chrs for more information.

Upgrading a less-than-honorable military discharge can be advantageous to your future. Contact the Veterans Affairs New York Regional Office at 800.827.1000 to request an application or visit www.va.gov/discharge-upgrade-instructions for more information.

Remember that all of these procedures (obtaining and cleaning up errors on your rap sheet, sealing arrests not leading to convictions, etc.) will take time and cost money. Start the process now, and make sure that prospective employers do not see any unnecessary information or errors when obtaining access to your record.

Sealing conviction records with Criminal Procedure Law § 160.59

Eligible individuals may request to have their records sealed if they have not been convicted of another crime for a period of 10 years from the day they were sentenced or released from jail/prison (whichever is later). People are eligible if they have only two (2) convictions on their record or, in some cases, if more than two convictions are related to the same one or two incidents. All misdemeanor convictions, other than those requiring registration as a sex offender, are eligible, and some felonies are eligible to be sealed. A person can seal, at most, one (1) felony. Sex offenses, violent felonies, and serious felonies are not eligible for sealing.

Members of the public (including employers and housing agencies) will not be able to see a conviction that is sealed. All arms of law enforcement, including police, district attorney, the courts, and corrections will be able to see the sealed conviction/prosecution. In addition, the Financial Frauds and Consumer Protection Unit of the State Department of Financial Services, the Office of Professional Medical Conduct of the State Department of Health, the Child Protective Services Units of any local departments of social services, US Citizenship and Immigration Services, and any agency that issues firearm licenses or gun permits will have access to sealed convictions. Under the New York State Human Rights Law (NY Executive Law § 296.16), employers are not permitted to ask about or act in response to a conviction that has been sealed, except if a person is applying to be a police or peace officer.

To apply to have your eligible conviction(s) sealed visit the New York State Courts website at www.nycourts.gov/FORMS/cpl_160.59_sealing_application/index.shtml to obtain a copy of the required forms, which include the “Notice of Motion and Affidavit in Support of Sealing Pursuant to CPL §160.59” form, and instructions. The instructions also contain a list of crimes that are not eligible for sealing. Read and follow the instructions provided to file a motion for sealing with the court.

Avoiding Discrimination in Your Job Search

Know your rights as a formerly incarcerated person

Under New York State law, Article 23A, it is illegal for an employer to deny someone a job based on a conviction, unless the employer can demonstrate it is job-related. The law says that in deciding whether or not a conviction is job-related, the employer must consider a number of factors, including evidence of rehabilitation (a Certificate of Good Conduct, for example). With sufficient evidence of rehabilitation, the burden of proof is on the employer to demonstrate that hiring you would be a risk to people or property, and that your conviction is directly related to the job for which you are applying.

A law called the Fair Chance Act says New York City employers cannot ask about your conviction history until after offering you a job.

What does New York City's Fair Chance Act do?

- Bans job ads that say things like “no felonies” or “must pass background check”
- Bans any questions about conviction history on job applications
- Bans any questions about conviction history during job interviews
- An employer can run a background check only after a conditional job offer is made

It is important to remember that a person cannot be discriminated against because of arrests, either. “Have you ever been arrested?” is an illegal question, both on a job application and during an interview. Your prior arrests can not be used against you even after a job offer is made, regardless of the reason for the arrest.

If you are denied a job because of your conviction history, the employer must explain why in writing. The employer must also connect your conviction to job duties or show that it creates an unreasonable risk. For example, a person convicted of embezzlement at a financial institution, once released, would have difficulty getting a job handling cash at a bank. The employer must hold the job offer open for three days to allow you time to discuss the issue or any wrong information.

There are laws that require background checks and prevent people with certain serious convictions from working in some jobs with children, older people, or in law enforcement, among other positions. The Fair Chance Act does not affect these limitations or change the background check requirements. These employers are allowed to tell applicants that the jobs are subject to a background check and that they may deny employment to workers with conviction histories that may pose a risk.

In addition to all employment in New York City, applicants for positions with New York State agencies will not be required to discuss or disclose information about prior convictions until and unless the agency has interviewed the candidate and has made a conditional job offer.

If an employer did not follow the rules described here, call 311 and ask for the Commission on Human Rights. You can leave an anonymous tip or file a complaint about what happened to you. If the employer is found to have broken the law, you could recover lost wages or other damages, and the employer may have to pay a fine.

You can also contact the Legal Action Center for help if you experience discrimination by calling 212.243.3113. They can advise you on your rights and give help with how to proceed. Important information relating to employment discrimination can be found on their website at www.lac.org or you can write to them at 225 Varick Street, New York, NY 10014 to request information by mail.

It is important to note that the Fair Chance Act is in effect in the five boroughs of New York City. If you are looking for work outside of New York City, you may still be asked about your conviction history on a job application or during an interview. In those cases, it is important to present your history in an accurate and positive light.

You can learn more about addressing your conviction in the Resume section on page 371 and in the Interview section on page 394.

Addressing alcohol or substance use disorder in your past

It is illegal for an employer to ask you whether or not you have a history of alcohol or substance use disorder. An employer can only ask if you are currently using illegal drugs. It is illegal for an employer to discriminate against you as someone who is recovering from alcohol or substance use disorder. If you have been refused employment and believe it was due to a history of alcohol or substance use disorder, or due to participation in a treatment program, contact the New York State Division of Human Rights at 888.392.3644 or the Legal Action Center at 212.243.1313.

Federal confidentiality laws prohibit most treatment programs from revealing any information about your treatment without your consent. However, an employer can learn of past or current substance use by conducting a background check or due to a medical exam required as part of the hiring process for some jobs.

NYC Human Rights Law

Employers cannot discriminate against job applicants and employees based on their age, race, color, religion/creed, national origin, gender, gender identity and gender expression, pregnancy, disability, sexual orientation, marital or partnership status, immigration or citizenship status, natural hair or hairstyles, arrest or conviction record, credit history, salary history, sexual and reproductive health decisions, caregiver status, status as a current or former military service member, unemployment status, or status as a victim of domestic violence, sexual violence, or stalking.

More information on the NYC Human Rights Law can be found on page 211.

In New York City, it is illegal for interviewers to ask about your past compensation amounts (salary or hourly wage).

COVID-19 and Workers' Rights

For questions about reopening, health and safety guidelines for the workplace, or to report an employer that is not following reopening requirements, call the NYC Worker Protect Hotline at 212.436.0381 or visit www1.nyc.gov/site/dca/workers/worker-rights.page. The website also has a PDF called Workers' Bill of Rights in 15 languages.

Demonstrate that you are a person who has undergone rehabilitative change

The law in New York City that prohibits questions about conviction records means that it is your decision to discuss your past in an interview. But, if you are offered a job, a background check may reveal your history. Be prepared for questions on whether your conviction relates to the job position. Certificates can act as an official line of support and a clean rap sheet will benefit you as well. Make sure to maintain supportive and accurate paperwork. In addition, practice answering questions that may be asked in order to feel confident discussing the ways you have changed.

Be ready to explain how you've managed the circumstances that led to your time in prison. For example, "Obstacles that were affecting me five years ago led to bad decision-making. Since then, I have learned to understand the underlying causes of my circumstances and choices. After release, my family and friends, as well as my educational experience, helped me develop perspective. I am positive that my past will not interfere with my work or my ability to make good decisions."

When choosing references for your resume and job application, select individuals who can testify to your present-day character and speak about your specific skills. Make sure to keep reference letters and contacts updated. Keep a file of these letters that speak of the meaningful ways you have changed and reflect your current set of skills.

What To Do While Unemployed

Assess your resources and plan realistically

It is important to plan a long-term strategy during your job search. Some questions to ask yourself: Can my family help support me while I seek work? Am I eligible for unemployment insurance, food stamps, or other types of government assistance? If I have savings, how long will they last?

Looking for work is never easy. The more time you can spend on looking for a job, the better your chances of finding one. Having people you can share your experiences with can be very important in job hunting. Make yourself accountable. If you have family or friends supporting you in your job search, talk to them about how the day went and what your plan will be for upcoming days.

Explore volunteer work for the advantages it offers

Volunteer work has many advantages. While volunteering, you gain experience and can make contacts that can later help you find a paying job. Any experience you gain should be included on your resume or job application and contacts can serve as references when applying to jobs. Volunteering shows you are a motivated individual, interested in expanding your skill set.

Assessing Your Skills

While preparing for the job search it is important to assess your interests and skills. Some people know exactly what work they want to look for, while others may be less certain.

Working with a job counselor or career coach can help make you aware of what you have to offer. It can also help to establish some realistic short and long term goals. A job counselor will interview you in order to assess your abilities in a certain skill and your preference toward a particular field of work.

If you would prefer to begin by assessing your own skills, there are books and online tools that can help such as the CareerOneStop online assessment at www.careeronestop.org/ExploreCareers/Assessments/skills.aspx. You can reach out to the job information center of your public library and ask for other materials and resources.

On the following pages is a Personal Skills Worksheet that you can use to begin a self-assessment. The worksheet can also be helpful in creating the content of your resume.

Writing a Resume

What Is a resume?

A resume is a document that lists your work experience, education, and skills. It summarizes relevant facts to show a prospective employer that you can do the job you are applying for. Your resume should highlight valuable and relevant skills, in a clear and readable way. It should demonstrate that you have the right qualifications, experience, and skills for the job.

Why is a resume important?

- Most employers require that you have a resume when applying for a job.
- A well-written resume can help you get an interview.
- After the interview, it serves as a reminder for the employer, of who you are and what you discussed.
- Creating or updating a resume helps to organize your work experience and skills, even if you do not need it for every job you apply to.

What goes in a resume?

- Your name, phone number, and email address
- A professional summary/occupational goal
- A list of key skills relevant to the job you are applying to
- Work and volunteer experience, and educational history

Not everything must appear on your resume every time, and the order can change depending on the type of resume you need and the job you are applying to.

Tailoring your resume

You should tailor your resume to show how your work experience specifically meets the needs of the job you're applying for. It is a good idea to make two or more resumes to focus on different aspects of your experience. If you've had many different jobs in your work history, you may wish to emphasize some in applying for one job and others in applying for another.

Ways that you can tailor your resume include:

- Write an opening statement that directly links your experience and education to the requirements of the job

- List the most relevant skills for the job first
- Include any certificates you have obtained that are needed for the job

It is important to include relevant keywords and phrases throughout your resume, specifically words and phrases that are used in the job advertisement and description. This is because larger employers use digital application tracking systems (ATSs) to search and filter high volumes of resumes before they are seen by a person, and resumes that do not include the right keywords may not be seen.

Use action verbs to describe your experience

Compare the following two examples and the impression they might make upon the employer. Action verbs are underlined.

- (a) 2014–2017 Smith & Sons, Bronx, NY
HVAC Technician
- heating, ventilation, and cooling
 - inspections and repairs
- (b) 2014–2017 Smith & Sons, Bronx, NY
HVAC Technician
- Installed, maintained, and repaired heating, ventilation, and cooling units.
 - Maintained good working order of units to ensure compliance with state regulations.
 - Conducted complete equipment inspections of 100 sites.
 - Trained and supervised two apprentices.
 - Performed preventative maintenance so that machines were in working order.

Some action verbs to help with your resume:

achieved, adapted, addressed, administered, arranged, assessed, assisted, authorized, collaborated, conducted, demonstrated, designed, developed, devised, directed, edited, enforced, evaluated, facilitated, fostered, generated, handled, hired, implemented, improved, initiated, launched, maintained, managed, marketed, mastered, motivated, operated, organized, oversaw, performed, planned, programmed, provided, publicized, recommended, reorganized, repaired, represented, researched, scheduled, screened, streamlined, supervised, trained, updated

Be sure to include all of the skills you have that are relevant to the job you're applying to, not just the ones that you've gained through formal work experience. Many of us have useful skills that we may not think of when applying for a job. If you can speak a second language, for example, include it on your resume. If you have excellent computer skills, say so. Have you ever operated any special types of vehicles—forklifts or trailer trucks? Or trained and supervised someone on the job at the facility's library or transitional services center? Have you ever exhibited leadership skills such as working with young people in a neighborhood youth program or coaching a team? Don't neglect to list such things. Employers are interested in your ability to get along with others on the job as much as they are in formal skill training. Show them in as many ways as possible that you possess the attributes they are looking for.

Types of resumes

Although there is no single format for a resume, generally they fall into one of two categories: the Chronological Resume, and the Skills Resume (also called a Functional Resume). Choose the type of resume best suited to your individual experience.

The chronological resume lists the jobs you've had and the schools you've attended, beginning with the most recent and going back in time. It is best suited for those people who have a relatively unbroken work record since leaving school and can offer good explanations for time gaps in their work record (a return to school or service in the military, for example).

The skills resume highlights your particular skills and abilities and puts less emphasis on the record of your work and education history. It is best suited for those who have changed jobs frequently, have not worked for long periods of time, and/or acquired skills while incarcerated or in non-job-related pursuits.

How to account for time incarcerated

Employers do not like to see time gaps on resumes. They assume that a person with a strong record of employment or schooling is a more stable and dependable person, and thus less of a risk to hire. However, there are creative and professional ways to account for time gaps.

When creating your resume, be sure to explain how you spent your time in prison to your best advantage. If you finished your high school diploma program or received tutoring or took a correspondence course, say so under “Educational Background.” If you were trained in asbestos removal, list this under “Skills” or “Work Experience.” List porter work done in prison, maintenance or landscaping, and work in a prison office, library, or transitional services center.

Help in writing a resume

It is a good idea to get some expert help in writing a resume. For example, reach out to your public library’s job information center, where you will find resources on how to write a resume, along with sample resumes. Specially trained staff will be able to look over what you have written and help you strengthen any parts of your resume that need improvement.

A resume must always look neat, and be typed and saved as a digital file. A digital copy of your resume is essential so that you may edit the contents of it to fit each job to which you apply. Public libraries have computers with printers for you to use. When creating your resume you can save a copy of it on a flash drive, save it to cloud storage (such as Google Drive), or email it to yourself and save it in your email inbox to access when needed. There are a number of free resources available online, so do not feel the need to pay for a service to create your resume.

If you need assistance with creating a digital copy of your resume, please see the Computer Literacy section of this book on page 70.

Notes to Sample Resume I

David Cooper spent three years, from 2008–2011, incarcerated in New York State correctional facilities. In his resume, he has used his experience to his best advantage.

- 1→ Show that while in prison you've done constructive things with your time. Mention any educational achievements or work experience you've had while incarcerated.
- 2→ If you've been involved in any organized prison activities or programs, list them. They help indicate to a prospective employer your personal growth and development while incarcerated.
- 3→ Consolidate and make use of your short-term employment experience. Six three-month painting jobs over a four-year period can be presented as "18 months experience."

Sample Resume II: Chronological Resume

Hector Diaz

718.555.5432 | hec.george@xahoo.com

Summary

Licensed Asbestos Worker with strong knowledge of safety practice and state regulations. Adept at working independently with limited supervision, or as a member of a professional waste material management team. Flexible scheduling, occasionally available to work third shift and weekends when needed.

Education

1 → Mid-Apple CF / Asbestos Abatement Program / 2014
Licensed Asbestos Handler

Ulster Community College / 2013

Associate Degree in Business Administration

US Army / 2005

Airframe and Powerplant License

Work Experience

Asbestos Handler / Mid-Apple CF / 2014–2019

2 → Responsible for removing asbestos materials in steam pipes, air ducts, heating plant equipment, and tunnels at nonprofit and county sites throughout Orange County. Worked closely with team of six.

Manager / Puebla Market / 2006–2011

3 → Managed fresh produce and prepared foods department of medium-size neighborhood market. Responsible for sales, ordering, pricing, and display. Supervised and trained clerks and cashiers.

Salesman / Stein Sports / 2000–2004

Organized stock, created attractive displays of new items, controlled inventory, sold merchandise, and provided customer service for credit and returns.

Other Skills & Assets

4 → Fluent in Spanish, valid NYS driver's license, willing to travel

Notes to Sample Resume II

Hector Diaz spent 2011–2019 incarcerated at an upstate correctional facility. His training as an asbestos remover at the prison has provided him with marketable skills. Hector chooses to name the school upstate that granted him a degree, without mentioning that he received the degree while incarcerated. He lists the facility where he received his asbestos training only as “Mid-Apple CF,” not “Mid-Apple Correctional Facility.” This assures that information about his incarceration is not the first thing the employer will notice. After being offered a job, he will have the opportunity to explain his conviction and his personal growth while incarcerated.

- 1 → Be sure to include all of the formal training and education you may have received, including courses in prison. It is to your advantage to show the prospective employer that you spent your time productively while incarcerated.
- 2 → When listing your work experience, always emphasize your responsibilities on the job and the skills that you learned or needed to employ. Hector was sent with fellow asbestos workers from his facility to work in nonprofit and local government sites throughout the county. He makes reference to this as well as to the fact that he worked as part of a team.
- 3 → Use action verbs for more effect (managed, supervised, trained, organized, sold, etc.).
- 4 → Highlight the advantages that might be useful to your job (fluent in Spanish, driver’s license) or in explaining your flexibility (willing to travel).

Sample Resume III: Skills Resume

2013 | CUNY LaGuardia, NY

Notes to Sample Resume III

Jennifer Blake spent most of 2017 incarcerated on Rikers Island in New York City, convicted on a misdemeanor charge. Because she has gaps in her work history, Jennifer has decided to construct a skills-type (functional) resume. She focuses on the many skills she acquired through her volunteer experience and office work as a clerk and administrative assistant.

- 1 → In choosing a skills-type resume, emphasize the skills you have learned from both your paid job experience and your unpaid job experience, including volunteer work. List your responsibilities and emphasize their importance in relation to your career objective.
- 2 → Due to COVID-19, jobs you are applying to might be remote. You may be working from home for all or part of your time. When updating your resume include skills that highlight that you can successfully fulfill work duties at a workplace or independently from home.
- 3 → Consider furthering your education. Many free or low-cost courses exist throughout the city in a variety of fields, including High School Equivalency and vocational skills. Listed on a resume, they will impress an employer and show that you are a person who wants to learn and has taken the initiative to do so.
- 4 → Be sure to include all information that might be relevant to your job objective. Include certificates that highlight particular expertise and skills that are relevant to the job you are applying to.

How to Use a Resume

- You will likely need to email a copy of your resume to a prospective employer or upload a file directly to an employer's website. If you need help doing so, you can contact your public library.
- If interviewing in person, bring copies of your resume to leave a copy with the interviewer.
- Share copies of your resume with any job-placement agency with which you establish contact.
- Share copies of your resume with professional associates and parole or probation officers who may come across job openings and notify you.

Benefits of professional email addresses

Creating a professional email address is very important, as it can have an impact on whether a candidate is interviewed or not.

Choose an email address format that is simple and professional. Common email formats include using your first and last name in various versions and ordering. It may be difficult to get a professional email of your choice, as billions of people are online, and your first and last name may have been taken by someone else already. If this is the case, you can use a shorter version of your name, initials, or a mixture of the two. You can also use an underscore to separate the names, although a period is more commonly used these days. Generally, it is best to avoid numeric characters in your professional email address, but you can use it if the situation demands it. You also may want to make sure it is easy to share verbally with someone, for instance on the phone. It is best to not use your year of birth, or your city, profession, or skill set in your professional email address as you may move or change jobs.

Common email formats include:

- Full name: nelsonjimenez@emaildomain.com
- First name with last initial: nelsonj@emaildomain.com
- First initial with last name: njimenez@emaildomain.com
- Full name with a period: nelson.jimenez@emaildomain.com
- First two letters in first name and last name: nejimenez@emaildomain.com

- Last name and first two letters in first name with a period:
jimenez.ne@emaildomain.com

The definition of email domain is the web address that comes after the @ symbol in an email address. For help and support with creating an email address, reach out to your local public library.

Ways to Look for a Job

There is no one definitive list of companies that hire formerly incarcerated people. This section outlines some of the ways to look for a job. Reaching out to organizations listed in this book, especially in the Organizations for Job Seekers section, starting on page 335, may be helpful in your job search.

Let people know that you are looking for work

Sometimes jobs are filled by word of mouth. Let your friends, relatives, and community contacts know that you are looking for work. They can spread the word, and as soon as they hear of a job opening somewhere, they can let you know about it. Many times, jobs are filled when an employer hears about possible applicants through their personal network. This may happen even before new openings are advertised. Consider inquiring about a job at a local business, ie. walk into the store and ask a manager if they are hiring.

Find jobs online

It is important to know how to look for jobs online. Most companies advertise their job openings online and many companies only advertise their openings online. This is especially true for larger companies. You will need an email address to send your resume to employers, to sign into job search websites, and to complete online applications. You may also need an email address for paper applications. Public libraries and some community organizations can provide help with learning how to use and set up a free email account.

Job search websites are the most popular places online for job searching. Most require you to type in the name of a job or skill, and a list of current job openings will show up based on that search.

Employers may look at resumes uploaded to job search and professional networking sites. Creating a jobseeker profile and uploading your resume can increase your chances of finding work. Jobseeker profiles can be created on professional networking sites, or on most of the larger job search websites. Creating a profile on more than one site can increase your chances of being spotted by an employer. It also means you'll get emailed more often about job vacancies.

More information about computer literacy is on page 70.

Contact the employer directly

Another way to learn where job openings are is to contact employers directly. By searching online, you can find the contact information of the businesses that interest you. If you know of a company that you would like to work for, you can check their website to see if they have any vacancies.

It is important to look for instructions on how to apply. If a company's website asks all applicants to apply online, follow those directions first. You can always follow up with a call or email later, but you do not want to be passed over for failing to follow the first direction.

Employment placement services

Employment placement services are similar to for-profit employment agencies in that they both provide job placement. Employment services, however, do not charge fees. They are usually attached to a government or community agency, a school, or a job-training program.

Go through the chapters Organizations for Formerly Incarcerated People and Organizations for Job Seekers. Many of the listings, such as the New York State Department of Labor—Job Services Division, are employment services. Others, such as the Center for Employment Opportunities (listed on page 48), include placement services. Note that some of the employment services listed specialize in job placement for specific groups, such as formerly incarcerated people, veterans, people recovering from substance use disorder, or people with disabilities.

Applying for a Job

Writing a Cover Letter

A cover letter is a one-page letter written to the person or organization offering the job you're applying for. A cover letter may not be needed for every job you apply to and certain industries do not generally use them for hiring. However, unless there are clear instructions not to send one, it is good practice to include a cover letter with your resume.

A well-written cover letter lets you introduce yourself, expand on topics covered in your resume, and showcase your writing skills. It is also a way to stand out from other people applying for the same job.

When writing a cover letter you should:

- Include the date of the letter
- Mention the job you are applying for and where or how you became aware of the opening
- Show that your skills and experience match the skills and experience needed to do the job
- Explain why you want the position and why you would be a good fit
- Request an interview and include a phone number and email address where you can be reached

When possible, address the cover letter to the director or head of a department by using the person's full name. To find this information you can search the company's website. Otherwise, "Dear Hiring Manager or Dear Human Resource Staff" is the best greeting. Avoid using a gendered greeting such as "Dear Sir or Madam".

The following is a sample of a job ad and cover letter:

Plumbing and heating wholesaler, AAA Plumbing seeks reliable, hardworking Warehouse Agents to join our team. Ideal candidates have work experience in a warehouse setting and working knowledge of receiving, handling, and distribution of freight is required.

- Ability to safely & skillfully operate a forklift

Dear Deanna McDonald,

I would like to express my interest in applying for the Warehouse Agent position at AAA Plumbing, advertised on your website. As a self-directed and reliable professional, with experience performing a range of general warehouse operations and knowledge of plumbing, I possess skills that will make me an excellent fit for the Warehouse Agent Position.

My background includes successfully receiving shipments, unloading goods, verifying invoices, and stocking items while working collaboratively with peers and management to maximize productivity. Through my experience, I have become highly skilled at adhering to warehouse requirements while facilitating streamlined operations.

The following achievements demonstrate my qualification for this position:

- Loading and unloading freight safely and efficiently by using various heavy machinery such as forklifts, pallet jacks, and other operating equipment.
- Evaluating inbound and outgoing product shipments to ensure quality control and accuracy.
- Demonstrating superior organizational, interpersonal, and time management abilities.
- Earning a reputation as an excellent team player and leader; regularly selected to train and mentor new hires.

My proven ability to optimize warehouse operations and team success, along with my solid skills in communication and problem solving, will contribute to the success of AAA Plumbing. Thank you for your consideration, and I look forward to speaking with you soon. I can be reached via phone at 718-555-0911 or email at njimenez@zmail.com.

Thank you in advance for your time,
Nelson Jimenez

Filling Out a Job Application

Most companies require a person to fill out a job application. To fill one out you will need to know a lot of detailed information about yourself, including your work and education history. It is a good idea to start gathering this information in advance, so you can have it ready and organized by the time you start looking for a job.

You can use the Personal Fact Sheet on page 408 to record your information in order to save time and have important names, dates, and addresses all in one place.

Many job application forms are now available online and most large companies only use an online application process. To apply online you will usually need to create an account, which will require an email address and choosing a username and password. Some online job applications must be completed in a set amount of time and some have lengthy questionnaires. The staff at most public libraries can help you with setting up a free email account and applying to jobs online.

When filling out an application on paper, take your time. Make sure your writing is clear and neat. It is helpful to look over the entire application before you start writing anything down.

Try to answer all of the questions asked on the job application. If any do not pertain to you, it is still recommended you put something in the space provided, such as “N/A” (Not Applicable). For example, if you have never served time in the military, you may write “N/A” where asked about military experience.

Review the guidelines detailed on page 362 to learn more about answering questions related to your conviction and avoiding discrimination.

Job applications are usually divided into four major categories:

- Personal Information
- Educational Background
- Work Experience/Employment History
- References

Personal information

You will need to have available:

- Your current address
- A phone number where you can be reached
- An email address

You are also likely to be asked if you are 18 or older, if you are legally allowed to work in the US, and whether you have served in the military.

Educational background

You will need to know information for every school you have attended. This includes a school's address, the years that you attended, and the type of degree, diploma, or certificate you received.

Include any other type of classes or school you have attended. For example, if you have taken a professional development class or went to any special type of trade or vocational school, include that information. If you've taken college classes, but have not received a degree, write the number of credits that you have earned, and in which major you were working.

Work experience/employment history

For this section, you will have to know and list your work experience and employment history starting with the most recent and going back. For each, be prepared to give the name of the company or employer, its address, the dates when you were employed, the type of work you performed, your title, and the reason for leaving.

You can also list unpaid work in this section. For example, if you have ever tutored, helped someone renovate their house, or volunteered for a community group.

For suggestions on how to account for time incarcerated in your work history, see the Resume section on page 371.

References

References are people your potential employer can contact to find out more about you. They are people who are familiar with your work or your character in a professional or educational setting. They can be current or former employers, supervisors, or teachers. It is best not to use friends or family members as references. Make sure you know their full name, job title, and current contact details and let them know you are listing them as a reference. This prepares them for the possibility that they will be contacted and asked to say or write a few words in your support. They will be most prepared to support you if they know what type of work you are looking for and if they have a current copy of your resume.

On the following page is a sample of a job application. Other information that may be asked includes salary expectations, hours you are available to work, and previous supervisor's name and contact information.

Interviewing for a Job

The job interview

Interviews are a chance for an employer to learn more about you and determine how well you are qualified to fulfill the requirements of the job. At the same time, the interview allows you the opportunity to assess whether or not the job is right for you, and to demonstrate how your skills or qualifications can be a positive asset to the employer.

If you make a good impression during the interview, you may get the job—even if you don't have all the qualifications. On the other hand, if you make a bad impression, chances are you will not be offered the position, no matter how good your qualifications.

Preparing for the job interview

Job interviews can be stressful, but practicing and being well prepared can help you feel more confident.

The following tips and techniques can help you perform well in an interview:

- Prepare for interview questions
- Learn about the company
- For in-person interviews: bring the materials you will need, and arrive early and be patient
- For remote interviews: test the technology, and set up the space and environment
- Wear professional clothing

Prepare for interview questions

One way to prepare for an interview is to think about how you will answer questions you might be asked. Practice answering common interview questions, individually and with other people. You can write down answers to hypothetical questions as well. Take your time with your answers, it is okay to pause and think. Remember, every answer you give should reflect how you are qualified for the job. The answer you provide should describe important and relevant highlights from your work background that shows you are qualified for the job. Avoid answering questions with your personal history. When an interviewer says, "Tell me about yourself," what they are really looking for is how your past work experience and skill set make you qualified for the job in question. Remember to practice what you will say before your interview, by writing down your answers to a variety of interview questions.

Some common interview questions are: Why do you want to work here? Tell me about a challenge or conflict you faced at work, and how you dealt with it? How do you work with others?

There are many websites that provide lists of common interview questions, such as www.glassdoor.com/blog/common-interview-questions.

Indeed's Career Guide, found online at www.indeed.com/career-advice?from=careeradvice, is a website for jobseekers that includes a section dedicated to common interview questions with examples of how best to answer them.

Be prepared to talk about what you see as your major strengths and weaknesses. Avoid personal factors that have no relevance to performing the job in question. When discussing a weakness, show not only that you are aware of the problem, but the measures you have taken to help solve it. For example, "In my last job, because we relied on paper and used the old software for years, I had limited experience using Microsoft Office. Because I always want to keep my technology skills up to date, I took it upon myself to learn Microsoft Office products in free classes I found in my community. Overall, I took 100 hours of training in Excel, Word, and Outlook, in order to feel confident and comfortable using the software."

Review the guidelines detailed on page 362 to learn more about answering questions related to your conviction and avoiding discrimination.

Due to COVID-19, it is important to know what information is illegal to ask about during an interview.

Questions about your home life, about parenting or caretaking duties, or health needs may be phrased in ways that seem relevant to the job and appropriate to ask, but in fact any questions about your personal life are illegal to ask in an interview. You do not have to disclose information such as marriage status, roommate situation, whether or not you have children or are a caretaker, information about your physical or mental health, or your home life. If you are asked personal questions, it is best to decline to answer in a polite and professional way such as, “Whether I am working remotely or in person, I have organized my schedule so that it won’t interfere with my work responsibilities.” Even if an interviewer asks a question such as, “How are you holding up this year?” be sure to focus on work and not disclose personal information in your answer.

Learn about the company

Before the interview, it is very helpful to learn about the company and the job for which you are applying. Employers like it when you show them you understand what they do, how they do it, and what their challenges are. It will help you to better explain why you want to work for that particular company or employer and what attracted you to the job. This information can usually be found on the company’s website, sometimes on the About Us page or History page. It is also helpful to find and know a company’s Mission Statement, often located on the About Us page. The mission of The New York Public Library, for example, is “to inspire learning, advance knowledge, and strengthen communities.” The Mission Statement will give you an idea of the personality and purpose of the company and give you a chance to explain how you fit into the company’s culture.

Make a list of all the important questions you would like to have answered at the job interview. They might include: What are the work hours? What are the opportunities for advancement? What benefits does the company offer? What are the challenges associated with the job? Don’t be afraid to ask questions, but keep them relevant. It reflects interest on your part.

For In-person Interviews

What you need to bring: Be sure to bring a pen, paper, and extra copies of your resume. You may also want to bring your Personal Fact Sheet from page 408, in case you are asked to complete a paper application form at your interview. Also, you may want to write down the name and phone number of the person who will interview you and have it ready. Bring any special documents you think you may need.

Arrive early and be patient: Being late for a job interview creates a very bad impression. Double-check the right date and time of the interview. It is best to go into the interview about 10 minutes ahead of the scheduled time, but plan to get to the location 30 minutes early to account for any delays.

Make sure you know any COVID-19 safety precautions that have been put in place by the organization or company you are applying to. This can be mask requirements, vaccination requirements, or getting your temperature taken.

Plan out how you will get to the interview location the day before. If you are taking public transportation, you may want to call the Transit Authority at 718.330.1234 for information on the best route to take or for schedules. You can also visit the trip planner at www.tripplanner.mta.info.

When you arrive, be polite. Avoid any lengthy exchanges with the receptionist or others who may be waiting. Be patient if you are not called in for the interview at the exact time agreed upon. Use the time to review and compose your thoughts.

It is impossible to tell how long an interview will take. If you need to plan two interviews on the same day, make sure you have left enough time in between them, so you will not be late to the second one.

For Remote Interviews

Test the Technology: Be sure to familiarize yourself with whatever technology is being used. If you are using a video-conferencing platform, be sure to check your video and audio settings well before the interview. You may want to conduct a practice run. Every platform has different setting options and you will want to make sure you are familiar with them before the interview.

Set up: Try to face the brightest source of light available. Do not place the source of light behind you. Make sure that the camera angle is head-on and at eye level.

Limit Distractions: Find the quietest space you have available for your interview. If you have earphones, use them to limit background noises. If you are using a video-conferencing platform, try to find a space where the background is not distracting or overcrowded, so that you are the focus of the interview. Be aware of what is visible on camera because your surroundings can reveal personal information about you or your family.

Wear professional clothing

Whether in-person or remote, part of presenting yourself well for a job interview involves dressing neatly in clean and unwrinkled clothes. Dressing professionally shows the employer that you are taking the interview seriously and makes a good impression. This is important even if clothes are not important for the job (for instance if you will be supplied a uniform or if it is a job where people get dirty).

Think about what you would wear on a typical work day in the job you are applying to and then come to the interview dressed one step more conservatively than that. For example, a nice pair of slacks, and a shirt or sweater would be appropriate for interviewing for an auto technician—where jeans and a shirt would be the typical daily attire. A suit or dressy shirt and pants are appropriate attire for most office position interviews.

Look up Clothing in the index of this book for organizations that provide free professional clothing to job seekers.

Helpful points for interviews

- Be professional
- Listen attentively
- Be clear, complete, and brief
- Be positive in your approach
- Avoid the negative

Be professional

Show the interviewer professional respect. Don't chew gum or stare at the clock or your watch. Turn your phone on silent and do not use it during the interview. Never debate with the interviewer, even if they seem aggressive in their approach.

Listen attentively

During the interview, try to be relaxed and listen carefully to what the interviewer has to say. If you are nervous (and it's perfectly normal to be nervous during an interview), try not to fidget. Be engaged and practice active listening by hearing out full statements before formulating your answer. It is okay to take your time.

Be clear, complete, and brief

Be professional with the language you use. Always answer with more than just “yes” or “no.” Think before answering to give succinct and specific information about yourself.

Be positive in your approach

It is important that you highlight your qualifications during the interview. Appear confident but never exaggerate your experience or skills. If the interviewer fails to ask you something you feel is important, fill in the gap. If asked to tell about yourself generally, mention only those things that pertain to the job for which you are applying.

Avoid the negative

Keep personal problems to yourself. Do not talk about your home or financial problems. The interviewer is only interested in finding a dependable and qualified person to fill the position. Emphasize what you can do, not what you can't. Never apologize for lack of education or experience. There are many skills and talents you have developed that you can discuss in a professional way.

If you've been fired from a job, be prepared to explain what happened if you are asked about it. Recognize the mistakes that were made, but show how you have learned from them. Never speak negatively about your former employers, even when asked about challenges you faced in previous jobs. If you stayed on jobs for only short periods of time, perhaps you quit to go back to school, or to look for a better-paying job with more responsibilities.

If you didn't finish school, explain the decision in a positive way. You can explain, “I left school because I accepted a job to earn money to support my family.” Mention any classes or training programs you have attended since leaving school, or any that you may have planned for the near future.

Discussing a conviction in an interview

In New York City, it is illegal for an employer to ask you about your conviction history. A background check can be conducted only after a job offer is made. Learn more about this law, the Fair Chance Act, on page 363.

If you interview for a job outside of the five boroughs of New York City, you must be prepared to discuss your conviction with confidence and positivity. Do not mention the details of the conviction or try to convince the employer of innocence. If the employer asks for specifics, state the charges for which you were convicted but do not elaborate or try to explain it away—it can sound false and will keep the focus on the negative. Be as brief as possible. For example, “I was convicted of felony sales of a controlled substance.”

Special consideration should be paid to the discussion of drug-related convictions. It is illegal for an employer to ask you whether or not you have a history of alcohol or substance use disorder. Current illegal drug use is not protected under employment discrimination law, and employers can ask if an applicant is currently using illegal drugs.

Employers like to see that a person can take responsibility for choices made in the past because it shows personal reflection, growth, and a desire for change. State that you’ve changed. It can be as simple as saying, “I’m a different person today.” Explain how you’ve changed by listing the concrete positive steps you’ve made in your life. This can cover a wide variety of areas—education, military service, work history, volunteer activities, and/or skills obtained inside or outside of prison.

Ending the interview

Remember, the interview is also an opportunity for you to find out more information about the potential job and employer. At the end of the interview, you can ask any thoughtful questions you have already prepared (during your research) or any clarifications you may need about something that was brought up in the interview. For example, you may want to ask the interviewer what they think is the main challenge of the job or if they offer opportunities for training. Usually, it is not a good idea to ask about details like lunch hours or vacations, unless the interviewer brings them up. If you are asked to discuss salary expectations, be prepared and be realistic. To see the average salary for a particular type of job, you can check the Occupational Outlook Handbook website at www.bls.gov/ooh, but remember it is illegal to be asked about your salary history in NYC.

In most instances, the decision whether or not to hire you will not happen at the interview. If no indication is given about when you can expect to hear from the company, ask about the notification process.

At the end of the interview thank the interviewer for the opportunity to be interviewed. Remember to remain professional until you've left the building.

Follow-up thank you email

Within 24 hours after the interview, send the employer a brief and professionally written email to thank them again for the opportunity to be interviewed. This shows the employer that you are serious about the job. It will help you stand out amongst your competitors, and many hiring managers/interviewers pay close attention to how well, and how rapidly, you write a thank you email after the interview.

In addition you can include any important information that you forgot to mention during the interview, as well as clear up anything that you feel you did not explain or present effectively during the interview. Be sure to proofread your letter before sending for grammatical and spelling errors. At your local library, a staff member can help you write and edit your email.

A Thank You email should:

- Include information that reminds the interviewer of your conversation. For example, mention something you discussed that you found interesting, or highlight what the interviewer liked about you.
- Share you are fit for the position by highlighting your skills and expertise that make you the right candidate for the job.
- Show enthusiasm. Make sure you convey your enthusiasm for the position.

- Be concise. Keep your message to one or two paragraphs (3–4 sentences for each).
- Address any issues you feel need resolution, or any concerns expressed by the interviewer.
- Identify next steps. End your email with another “thank you,” and summarize any next steps discussed during your interview.

The following is an example thank you email.

Hi Deanna,

Thank you so much for meeting with me today. I really enjoyed learning more about the job at AAA Plumbing, and hearing about your experience working for the company. I am very excited about the opportunity to join your team, as a Warehouse Agent. I believe that I have the skills and experience to ensure that the organization continues to do great work, since I have spent three years working in a similar role.

I can tell AAA Plumbing is a special place to work, and I would be thrilled to join such an innovative, hardworking, and passionate team of individuals. Please let me know if there is anything else I can provide to make your hiring decision easier. I can be reached at 555-0911.

Best regards,
Nelson Jimenez

After the Interview

Being Offered a Job

There are several factors to take into consideration before accepting a job offer. But remember, it is much easier to find a job when you already have one. If the job you have been offered isn't exactly what you wanted, it may still be worthwhile to accept the offer and learn as much as you can and make money while you continue to look for another job.

Job potential

Ask yourself whether the job will challenge you. Will you be given the opportunity to work your way up to positions of more responsibility and higher pay? Will you be in a good place financially, even if you are looking for other opportunities? Try not to lose sight of your long-term goals and continue to work toward them, even if you find yourself at a job that does not live up to your expectations.

Salary or hourly wage

How much you are getting paid is an important factor when considering a job offer. Find out about your hourly wage, whether you will be receiving a fixed salary each pay period, or whether you will be dependent on commissions or tips. Also, find out if there will be opportunities for earning extra money on the job by working overtime.

When choosing between two jobs, a person will not always decide to take the one offering the highest pay. Other important factors include working conditions, benefits, better hours, an easier commute, and more opportunities for training or job advancement.

Benefits

Benefits are what you receive from an employer in addition to your wages. They may include medical insurance, paid sick leave, paid holidays and vacation, parental leave, a wellness plan, uniforms and special equipment needed on the job, unemployment insurance, worker's compensation, or tuition assistance for continuing education. It is important to find out what benefits are offered at the job you are considering.

Other factors worth your consideration

- Commuting time and costs to and from the job

- Working conditions, such as hours, weather, noise levels, lighting, and dust
- Safety factors, such as risks of injury and COVID-19 precautions
- Social environment, workplace culture, and coworkers

Helpful Hints in Adjusting to a New Job

Be dependable and responsible

Do not be late for work or be absent without having a good reason and giving advance notice. If commuting, get to know exactly how long your commute is and allow for extra time. Always expect transportation delays. If you are going to be late, or can't make it to work, call in immediately. If you offer to do a task or are asked to do one, make sure it gets done. Don't promise to do more than you can reasonably handle.

Be patient

When you first begin a new job, there is a lot to be learned, no matter what the job is. It's normal to be nervous during the first week or two. Your employer wants you to do well and communicating with them could help you adjust to a new role.

Follow directions

If you need to understand something better, don't be afraid to ask questions. Your success as an employee will be judged to a very large extent on your ability to listen and follow directions. There are usually valid reasons why you are told to perform tasks the way that you are.

Get along well with your coworkers

Performing your job assignment is only one aspect of job adjustment. Equally important is your ability to get along with your coworkers and/or the public you serve. If a problem occurs at work, practice professional communication and discuss the issue with your boss. If your workplace has a Human Resources department, that is where you would report serious issues like abuse, discrimination, or harassment.

Learn from constructive criticism

Create boundaries between personal life and work

Work often offers you the opportunity to socialize with coworkers, and socializing is an important feature of the work experience. Still, it is important to remember that your main reason for being at work is to perform your job. Don't let personal issues interfere with work. It is unfair to take a lot of time talking with coworkers about your personal affairs when it can end up jeopardizing both your jobs.

Leaving a Job

If you decide your current job is not the right fit, it is a good idea to secure another job before leaving. The job market is competitive in NYC and securing a new job will take time. Employers generally prefer choosing new job applicants from those who are already employed.

If you quit a job, be sure to give your current employer at least two weeks' notice. It is important to be professional when leaving a job so that they will be more likely to give you a good recommendation for your next job.

Some things to think about

- Is your job covered by unemployment insurance? If so, will you be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits?
- If you were laid off or fired, do you have any recourse? Can you appeal the decision to anyone in the HR department or union?
- If you were laid off or fired, is there any severance pay that you can collect?
- What will happen when you leave the job in terms of your pension, your health insurance coverage, and your unused vacation and sick time?

Being Unemployed

Unemployment Insurance (UI) provides temporary financial help to workers who are unemployed through no fault of their own. If you suddenly find yourself unemployed, you may be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits. If you are eligible, you must declare yourself willing and able to work and actively looking for new work while receiving unemployment benefits.

For recorded information on unemployment insurance, call 888.209.8124 (Spanish spoken). You will be asked by the local unemployment office to begin by bringing in your Social Security card and one or two other pieces of identification. (A pay stub from your former job is also helpful.) If you are eligible for benefits, there is a 2- or 3-week processing period, after which you will receive cash benefits (an amount proportionate to the salary you received and the amount of time you worked) for at least 26 weeks.

While unemployed, you may also be eligible to receive other types of benefits. These can include food stamps or Medicaid (see the Financial Assistance chapter starting on page 110), or union benefits if you were a dues-paying member of a union where you last worked. You may also be eligible for programs made to help people find work or further their education and training.
